Some friends named the Wong's we're surprised when the wife bore a child which looked nothing like any oriental he'd ever seen. Unlike his friend however, Mr. Wong sued for divorce, which the judge immediately granted. As he put it" there was obviously some hanky-panky going on, since two Wong's don't make a white.

Some folks are missing more than a screw. The whole darn toolbox is gone!

 A Frenchman with a parrot perched on his shoulder walked into a bar. The bartender said, "Wow, that's really neat. Where did you get him?" "In France," the parrot replied. "They've got millions of em over there!"

According to the order form, if I wanted a school photograph of my first-grader, there was one simple rule I had to adhere to; "Your child must be present at the time the picture is taken!"

On his first trip to the United States an Arab potentate was treated to a formal White House dinner. Unaccustomed to the salty foods, but not wishing to offend his hosts, he had his aides slipped quietly away and bring him constant refills for his water glass. After a lengthy time away, the aide returned without water. Furious, the potentate demanded to know where it was. Bowing low the aide said, "forgive me your Majesty, but we must wait: Secretary of State is sitting on the well!"

Question:
How can you tell when a biker is happy?

Answer. There are bugs in his teeth.

What a difference 30 years make, from 1971 to 2001: * Long hair--Longing for hair * KEG—EKG * Rolling Stones--Kidney stones * Screw the system--Upgrade the system * trying to look like Marlon Brando or Elizabeth Taylor-- * Trying not to look like Marlon Brando or Elizabeth Taylor!

My husband, Brian is a computer systems administrator. He is dedicated to his job and works long hours, really taking time off to eat. One afternoon Brian was overwhelmed with saving a computer network problem, so I decided to deliver a meal for him to eat at his workstation. When I was getting ready to leave, I said goodbye and reminded him to eat his burger and fries while they were still warm. Staring at his monitor, he waved me away. "Don't worry," he said obviously distracted, "I'll delete them in a few minutes."

My friend Agnes is an accomplished harpist who frequently plays at weddings, receptions, parties and other such events. She is also blond and has an appropriately cherubic face. She was on her way to an engagement at the Peabody Hotel in Memphis, and she stepped into an elevator with her large golden harp. Just before the doors closed, a distinguished gray-haired man stepped on. As the elevator rose, he looked thoughtfully first at her and then to the harp and asked, "And just how far up are you going?"

After years of using the same perfumes, I decided to try something different and settled on a light, citrusy fragrance. The next day I was surprised when it was my little boy not my husband, who first noticed the change. As he put his arms around me, he declared, "Wow, Mom, you smell just like fruit loops,!"

Adam returned home one night, and Eve confronted him at the door. "You're seeing another woman, aren't you?" She accused. "Don't be silly," he replied, "You're the only woman on earth." Later, while half asleep, Adam felt a tickle on his chest. "What are you doing?" he asked Eve. She looked at him, "Counting your ribs!"

"Hey Spiro," said the man down the bar, "what time is it?" Looking up from his Scotch, Spiro said, "I couldn't say for sure, Morty, but I do know that it ain't three o'clock. "How do you know that?" "Cause I told my wife I'd be home by then, and I ain't there yet!"

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Gwen was shocked when her 22-year-old friend Peggy announced one day that she was going to marry a 72-year-old man. "Peggy," she said, "you know these May-December Marriages are never happy ones for May. December finds energy and beauty and youth in May, but what does May ever find in December?" Winking, Peggy replied, "Santa!"

You know that part of your brain that stops you from saying the wrong thing? I don't have that!
