

Hello, Pet Parents!

Welcome to the November 2018 (issue #2!) of the Furkids Newsletter. Each issue I hope to improve upon and provide information you find informative and beneficial. Please feel free to share the information to friends and family through Facebook and email.

If you have any thoughts of products you believe improve life for yourself or your furkids, please send me a note! It may be featured in an upcoming newsletter.

Cleaning Your Dog's Ears

Just like us, your dog's ears can build up wax and other debris. Dogs can also get ear infections and ear mites.

Whatever the reason, when your dog's ears are gunky, they need to be cleaned to prevent further problems and to allow ear medications to work effectively. But don't overdo it. "If your dog's ears aren't gunky, don't clean them! Over cleaning can cause ear disease," warns William H. Miller, DVM, Cornell University School of Veterinary Medicine director of the Companion Animal Center.

If your dog's ears do need to be cleaned, you may notice him scratching at his ears, and you may see that the skin inside the ear is red and angry-looking.

Cleaning the ears will help to reduce the irritation, although ultimately the source of the infection must be treated to gain long-term relief.

Furkids Favorites!

Finally, there is a way to easily get some Cosequin into our finicky feline furkids! Nutramax has come out with a soft chew / treat that is actually palatable for our picky kitties!

I have seen how much Cosequin makes a difference in the daily lives of both canine and feline furkids, and any way we can make getting Cosequin into our babies easier, will make the Furkids Favorites list! One of our finicky furclients has been enjoying these "treats" and it has helped her joints tremendously. Cosequin works, give it time.

These leashes are life savers right now! A friend brought them to my attention after she saw someone walking her dog early in the morning. She spotted the dog LONG before she saw the person, and in the dark mornings in older neighborhoods these lighted leashes make a HUGE difference. Check out the line from Illumiseen, not just for dogs, but horses and humans as well!
