GATHERING

GREETING AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

*CALL TO WORSHIP (Flames of the Spirit, Ruth Duck) Gert Myer

Leader: God has been acting in our lives and in the world around us this past week.

People: We have come for this hour of worship to make ourselves more aware of God and to give thanks for God's presence with us.

Leader: God is here even now, ready to strengthen us and to urge us to greater faithfulness.

People: Fill us with your goodness, O God. Draw us into the orbit of your activity in the world that we might fulfill the purpose for which you created us.

All: Amen

*HYMN "Your Love is Alive"

*OPENING PRAYER (Kwasi Kena, African Worship) Gert Myer

Loving God, there is nothing better than trusting you. Teach us how to wake up trusting you, go to sleep trusting you and walk through life trusting you. Teach us to trust you until we're completely at peace with you. When we find that peace in you, help us to notice what else you have in store for us – and audacious hope! We thank you in advance for the hope that suffers and endures. Thank you for the hope that endures and builds character. Thank you for the hope that never disappoints. Lord, we come to bow before you today so that we can stand courageously tomorrow. Lord, help us to trust. Lord, give us peace. Lord, grant us hope. Amen!

6 Ways White People Can Observe Juneteenth

1. Respectfully attend or volunteer at events

Ask your local sponsor of Juneteenth events and your Black friends, colleagues, and church friends how you can help. Volunteer for the clean-up/set-up crews. Help staff information booths, if appropriate. If you attend as a guest, be respectful. Do not wear African dashikis or kente cloth without first asking permission. While you may intend it as appreciation, others may view it as cultural appropriation.

3. Support Black churches, charities, and businesses

Make a regular tithe or donation to a local African American church, a United Methodist campus ministry at a historically Black college or university, or community ministry or scholarship-fund supporting Black, Indigenous, and People of Color. Make deliberate efforts to support Black-owned businesses and services.

5. Confront the history in your community

Learn about the history of enslaved Black people in your local area and state. Explore the history of your church and its leaders and develop ways that your congregations can make tangible amends and reparations.

2. Preach and teach about the current face of racism

Many white people have been socialized to see racism as a challenge of the distant past. However, full voting rights and equal education for African Americans were not granted until the 1950s and 1960s. In The United Methodist Church, some annual conferences had legalized racism until the 1970s. The U.S. Church is still largely segregated in worship and work. White Christians must grapple with their role in perpetrating racism and work to heed God's call to "let justice roll down." Use sermons, worship, and church media to educate and inspire your congregation.

4. Listen and read

Juneteenth offers an opportunity for white friends and family to learn more about the realities African-Americans face and the contributions they make to the church, community, and world. Listen to this podcast with Jasmine Bradshaw, which further explains Juneteenth history and ways your family can celebrate the holiday.

6. Church school and small groups

Discuss Juneteenth's history and current implications for African Americans. Invite a local Black history teacher or museum curator to speak, or watch the Ava DuVernay's Netflix documentary, 13th: From Slave to Criminal with one Amendment, which explores the U.S. journey from the enslavement of Black people to the school-to-prison pipeline. A study guide for the film from Influence Film Club is available.

BeADisciple.com Class to be Taught by Dr. Jerra

What is BeADisciple.com?

BeADisciple.com has provided quality online educational experiences with roots in Wesleyan theology since 2006. They offer online studies, courses, and certification programs on a variety of ministry, formation, and leadership topics. All of the courses offer CEU credits. Their goal is to make rich learning experiences accessible to church leaders and laity, no matter their location or life situation, and to help them grow as disciples in faith and ministry.

MEET YOUR INSTRUCTOR,

JERRA JENRETTE

IN THE ONLINE COURSE
'OLD TESTAMENT THROUGH A
DIFFERENT LENS: TORAH AND BEYOND'

Old Testament? Hebrew Bible? TANAKH? What do these three terms have in common? Indeed, do these titles give us any sense of the fact that they refer to the same set of scriptures? This two-week study will introduce you to the Old Testament through a different lens, using the works of not only the text by Rabbi Evan Moffic but also writings and interpretations from renowned Jewish scholars, both past and present. Learners will be exposed to Jewish perspectives on the Torah without the requirement of familiarity with Judaism or understanding of Hebrew. With or without formal academic experiences with the scriptures, participants can feel confident of success in the course.

Wesbury United Methodist
Retirement Community in Meadville is in need of volunteer support.

Have You Considered Volunteering?

The benefits of volunteering can be enormous. It not only offers vital help to residents in need and the Wesbury community, but the benefits can be even greater for you, the volunteer. Volunteering can reduce stress, combat depression, and provide a sense of purpose. Giving even in simple ways can help those in need and improve your health and happiness.

Keep in mind, volunteering doesn't have to be a long-term commitment or take a huge amount of time out of your busy day. You can choose to be as involved as often or as little as you like. Currently, we have needs with:

- Mealtime Assistance
- One-on-one visits
- Bingo Calling
- Crafting
- Transporting to Activities
- Other Activity Assistance

If you are interested in volunteering but don't know how to get started Stacey Hoey, Wesbury's Volunteer Services Coordinator, would love to meet with you to discuss how you can share your time and talents with the Wesbury community. Stacey can be reached at 814-332-9280 or by email at shoey@wesbury.com.

"Whatever you do, work at it with all your heart, as working for the Lord, not for human masters, since you know that you will receive an inheritance from the Lord as a reward. It is the Lord Christ you are serving." -Colossians 3:23-24
