TYSOWSKI FINALLY STEPS UP HIS GAME!

Speedster Joe Tysowski kicked it into high gear Sunday night for his team The Cadillac Cossacks. Tysowski, who was absent all last season scored five times to lead the Caddies to a 12-7 victory over the league-leading Golden Knight Cossacks.

Known for his unique helmet, lid, colander, whatever that is, and his vocal attributes, Tysowski was playing left wing for the Caddies in front of five fans in the stands. Fist pumps and celebrations beyond normal league practice was everywhere on Sunday night as Tysowski pounded his way into the scoring race. Tysowski was not available for comment following the game as he always leaves the arena immediately following his game without illustrating comradery. While disciplinary action will not be taken, this article may entice him to stay to cheer on the other Cossacks and enjoy a Pilsner too.

JERSEYS WANTED

The UHL Commish is searching for many original Jerseys that have gone missing over the years. If you have a (no-name) Blue or White Jersey, and have your own Personalized Jersey, please return them to the World Headquarters as soon as possible. This includes the old Blue and White Socks, please return them to the Commish without interest.

UHL MAY LOOK FOR MORE PLAYERS IN 2018

Calgary – Without question, the UHL and its recent expansion to four teams has created some controversy after three games into the season. With only eleven players per team, the age and ability of some players is starting to show. Team Captains, Agents, Scouts and the Commissioners Office is carefully watching the weekly call-ups as this strategic method to stack the teams appears to be the key to success.

A recent survey of three players and a fan shows many players are exhausted after a solid hour of playing with little support from the bench. League officials knew this may be an issue heading into the Expansion Draft, however it was the drive and desire of many, well five guys, that made this league expand to four teams. Following the mid-season break (May long weekend) captains will meet to discuss format and how to improve for the 2018 season. Until then, its game on as all four teams strive to hoist the Cossack Cup on June 25 at the Westside Recreation Centre.

UHL PLAYOFF TICKETS UPDATE

UHL WEEKLY NEWS

UHL WILL BE PUBLISHED BY “THE PEWS NEWS” ON SUNDAY APRIL 30

Calgary, Alberta - UHL publicist has issued a release stating to media that the UHL Commissioners office was recently interviewed by the St. Stephen administration. At this interview, journalist Laurie Kindrachuk asked many questions about the UHL, how it was formed, when, by whom, and in general what is it all about.

Ron Bobyn, acting Commish of the UHL made a few statements for them to publish in this week's "Pews News". Stop by your local St. Stephen Ukrainian Catholic Church to see what's happening with the UHL and St. Stephens and how this duo are meshed.

FIGHTIN' COSSACKS CAPTAIN IS NOT SINGING THE BLUES

Flames Community Arenas – Calgary.

The Fightin' Cossack Captain Chris Buck, also known as "Richola" is laughing all the way to hoisting the Cossack Cup in June as he watches his competitors make call-ups as easy as finding a beer in the dressing room.

Buck, known for his tardiness, was interviewed by the Weekly News following Sunday's loss, and he was emotionless by the loss, however he was happy he has not had to make any call-ups after three games.

In a statement released by Buck this afternoon, "Those other Captains are blowing their goals early in the season. They keep calling up all the known gun-slingers to score their teams some goals, but that are not methodically considering the last half of the season and how important these call-ups could be in the run for the Kup in late June".

Meanwhile, in other news, the UHL announced today that there will be no call-ups for the final two games of the season. Buck wasn't too concerned heading into game four.

UHL TOP BRASS EXPRESS BEST WISHES FOR MISSING COSSACK

MONTREAL, QC – While the UHL is heading into its fourth game of the season, UHL leaders are curious as to the whereabouts of fellow Cossack Pierre Loczy.

In a statement released by family members, Loczy was last seen in Montreal tending to his ailing mother. Loczy, known for his smooth defensive work, was not available for comment.

The UHL passes along its best wishes to Loczy and his entire family, and hope for his return soon and the best wishes for his mother's health and that the UHL will always come second to family.

FIGHTIN' HIGH AT 55!

UHL veteran Mark Ochitwa turned 55 years young on April 25th and still managed to score no goals in game #3. The UHL and all the Players wish you a happy birthday, and best wishes in 2017. Perhaps removing the nickname "smoke-and-a-coke" was the best move Ochitwa has made this year. Congratulations Marko!

MOVIE TICKETS

The Blockbuster Movie "Taras Bulba" is not in theaters nor will it be. So pull out your VHS tape of this iconic movie, grab your Cossack Sword, and and enjoy!!!

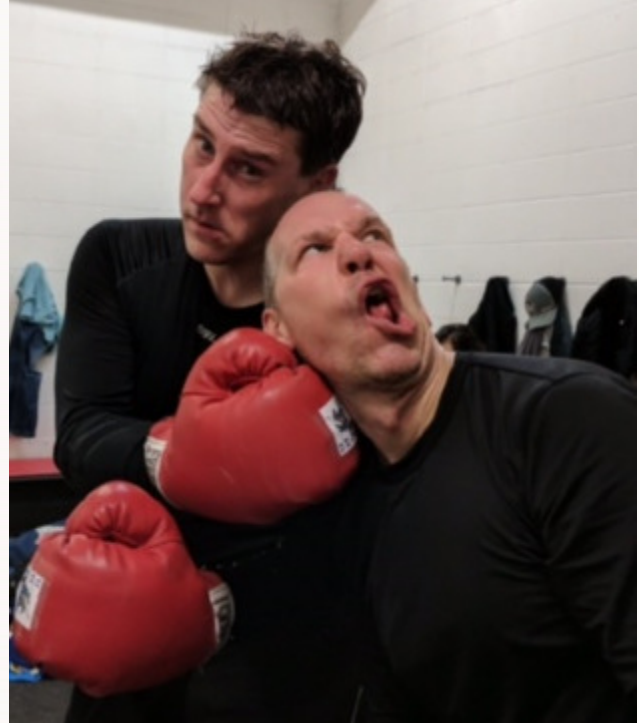

UHL WEEKLY NEWS

YOUNG BUCK WANTS TO “LEAF”

UHL newcomer Jonny, “spaghetti-legs” Buck was “holding his own” (as seen above) on Sunday night as he watched his beloved Toronto Maple Leafs go down in Flames as they got knocked out of the playoffs to the hands of the Washington Capitals.

Buck, the speedy 15 year old winger, was last seen crying on the bench shortly after hearing of the loss. He decided to perform like his beloved Maple Leafs and not score a goal for his team the Fightin’ Cossacks. While he was not available for comment, the UHL would NOT like to express our condolences to Buck, nor the Leafs.

THOSE ARE FIGHTIN’ WORDS

Ponoka, AB - Dave Ewanchyna, seen in the above left, took exception to fellow goaltender Vince Letwin on Sunday night as Letwin tried to steal the “award” of the night given to Ewanchyna for his stellar performance on the ice as defenseman. Ewanchyna, known for his spectacular goaltending, and nick-named “the Wall”, won the award for the Fightin’ Cossacks as he played as a defenseman for the first time in a year.

Letwin was unavailable for comment and was last seen in the showers waiting for hot water with little birdies hovering over his head.
