

The S.A. Thompson House now known as The Stanwood House, was built sometime between 1900 and 1908. The house is a two-story hipped roof colonial with full front and side porches. Porch supports had decorative brackets and cresting.

The Sons of Norway was organized in Stanwood in 1910 and they made their home at the I.O.O.F. Public Hall until they bought the S.A. Thompson Hall in 1914 and moved it across the street to the present location.

The Josephine Old People's Home was built in 1908 on ten acres donated in the form of a warranty deed to the Lutheran Church. It was dedicated in honor of John Hals beloved wife, Josephine, to preserve her memory after her unexpected death.

Stanwood's City Hall was built in 1936 and much of the labor was provided by the Works Progress Administration (WPA), with well-tended shrubbery to enhance its lines and handsome light standards.

The People's Union Hall near the depot was dedicated in 1904 amid much fanfare and a cooperative store was established. A few years later, the townsite of East Stanwood was platted.

The Town Hall for East Stanwood was dedicated on December 21, 1940. It was built through the Works Progress Administration (WPA) and in 1960 when Stanwood and East Stanwood consolidated it was sold to the Frank Hancock Post 92, American Legion.

STILLAGUAMISH
Tribe of Indians

STANWOOD HISTORIC SITES MAP

The D.O. Pearson House belonged to the first mayor of Stanwood. He arrived in the area when it was still called Centreville and became the sixth Postmaster in seven years, changing the town's postal designation to a less commonly used name of Stanwood, the maiden name of his wife Clara. The house was built in 1890 and was placed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1973. It is a three-story Second Empire Victorian style.

The Floyd Norgaard Cultural Center, originally the Stanwood Fraternal I.O.O.F. Public Hall, is on the National Register of Historic Places. Built in 1902, it is located in the historic town center of Stanwood, a small community of rich Scandinavian heritage. One hundred years later, the Stanwood Area Historical Society and the Norgaard family bought the hall and saved this historic landmark so it could continue to serve as a community center for music, theater, arts and other cultural and family events.

