Nikol Klein offers a unique, creative vision to the real estate world. Having a previous career as a professional ballet dancer, Nikol travelled and performed on stages all across the country before settling down in Del Mar, where she has resided for over a decade.

As an artist, Nikol's careful attention to detail truly shines through in the marketing of her seller's homes. She takes a hands-on approach to each home she lists, carefully consulting with the photographers, videographers, and designers to make sure that no detail goes unnoticed. She believes that each home should be looked at as a unique piece of art and marketed in a way that reflects the story it has to tell.

I know that first impressions are everything, so I always put my best foot forward.

Nikol knows that the passion and care she puts into each one of the homes she lists conveys to the potential buyers from the moment they first set eyes on the property - whether that be online or in person. She believes that first impressions are everything and that the right presentation puts her clients in a better position in the competitive real estate market.
