

Gina L. Osborn

Gina L. Osborn began her law enforcement career in 1986 by enlisting in the U.S. Army as a Counterintelligence Special Agent. She served six years during the Cold War investigating the highest profile espionage cases in the European Theater. In 1996, Gina became a Special Agent with the FBI. She had numerous assignments over her 22-year career which include investigating Asian Organized Crime, supervising counterterrorism investigations in Southeast Asia and leading some of the Bureau's most catastrophic computer intrusion investigations. Gina retired from the FBI in 2018 and now serves as a Leadership Consultant, dynamic keynote speaker and podcast host encouraging women to lead unapologetically. She currently hosts Lead Like a Lady – A Real Life Podcast featuring remarkable women who have made it to the top in male dominated industries.