

Biography of Tyler Joshua Green

Dr. Tyler Joshua Green received his ministry license from his mentor Jeffrey A. Johnson Sr. and the Eastern Star Church in Indianapolis, IN where he discerned and accepted his call to ministry as a student at the church's K-5 elementary school, Jewel Christian Academy. After earning the school's youngest class valedictorian, Tyler tested out of 1st grade and was skipped up two grades to 3rd grade.

You may have seen a 19-year-old Tyler Joshua Green on CNN being interviewed before the second inauguration of President Barack Obama about his social and spiritual impact with students in Washington D.C.. A short time after being invited as the featured speaker at the 2016 Atlanta Mayor's Masked Ball, Dr. Green shared his public speaking gifts on a multi-city tour with the CAU Philharmonic Society. The city of Atlanta raised over $1,000,000 for the students in the Atlanta University Center Consortium who were represented by Tyler Joshua Green, Clark Atlanta University's youngest Student Government Association President. His work organizing voter registration drives with students set forth a paradigm that helped turn the State of Georgia blue.

After graduating with honors from Clark Atlanta University, Tyler Joshua Green earned a Master's of Divinity from Duke University where he was often a featured speaker at Duke Chapel while also accepting speaking invitations from various churches around the nation.

Reverend Green has deep ties in activism rooted in the black church which has led him to organize various rallies, marches and protests in Indianapolis, Atlanta and North Carolina. During Rev. Dr. Raphael Warnock's campaign for Senator of Georgia, Tyler Joshua Green was selected by Senator Warnock for a year-long preaching itinerary at the Historic Ebenezer Baptist Church.

Dr. Bill Allen, Founder of the New Black Wall Street Market, first encountered an 17-year-old Tyler Joshua Green speaking on a 2011 Trumpet Awards panel. In the years that followed, TJ Green led a class at the Allen Entrepreneurial Institute International with students and young entrepreneurs from various American HBCUs and Young African Leadership Initiatives.

In 2020, after meeting with a team of young pastors and activists, Tyler Joshua Green founded the United Churches of America, a new virtual voting system, highlighting socially conscious churches throughout the United States.

Frequenting international festivals and private banquets, Dr. Green combined his role as the Spokesman for the New Black Wall Street Market with various social justice initiatives thru the church, academy and minority owned businesses.

Dr. Green has raised funds for various organizations including the Southern Education Foundation and has presented annually as a session leader and delegate for economic development forums as well as poverty and mass incarceration conferences. In 2023, Dr. Tyler Joshua Green completed his Doctor of Ministry in Global Leadership in the African Diaspora at Jakes Divinity School founded by Bishop T.D. Jakes. Rev. Dr.

While matriculating in programs in Georgia, North Carolina, California and Oregon, Tyler Joshua Green's writings have been published in various books and scholarly articles. Dr. Green was also accepted in a third doctorate program at United Theological Seminary as a fellow of the William H. Curtis/Lance Watson Cohort.