Customizing a Chat

How to give ChatGPT information and not have it do anything

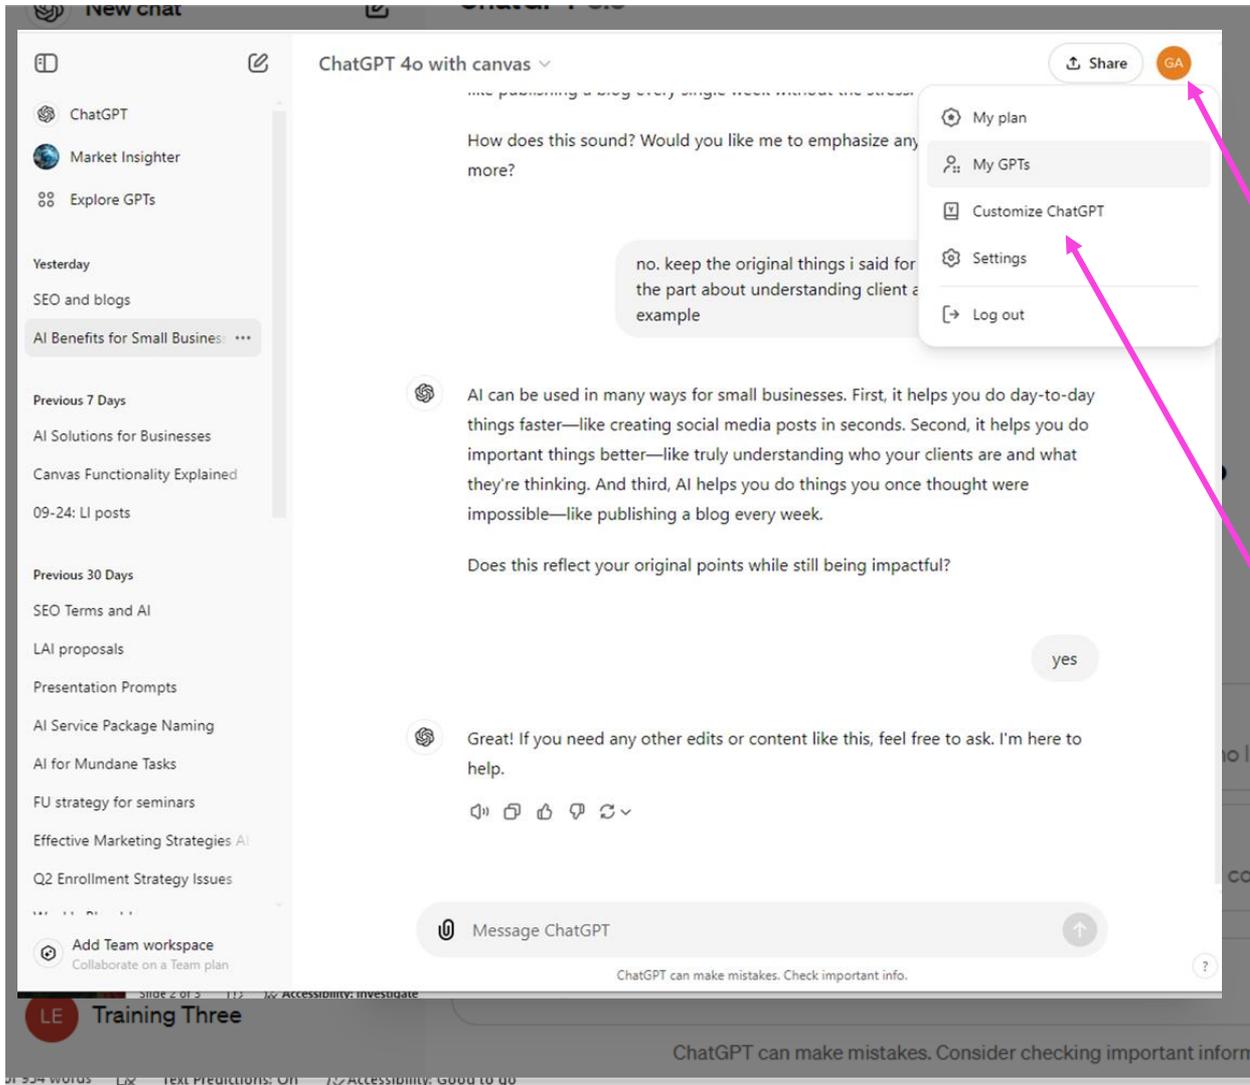

Here is some information about my clients who are younger. They care about buying their dream home, saving for their children's college education, taking vacations. They are concerned about how to save for these things and worried about what happens if they lose their jobs.

Wait for further instructions.

This assumes that somewhere you have told ChatGPT what you do: such as you are a financial advisor.

New Features and a HACK

New capabilities you can use for FREE, but for a limited time.

The HACK

You can use some of the ‘premium’ features for a while in the FREE version

- Several of the premium features available in the paid version of ChatGPT, “ChatGPT Plus”, are available in the FREE version
- BUT they are only available for a limited time each day

Current premium features you can use for FREE

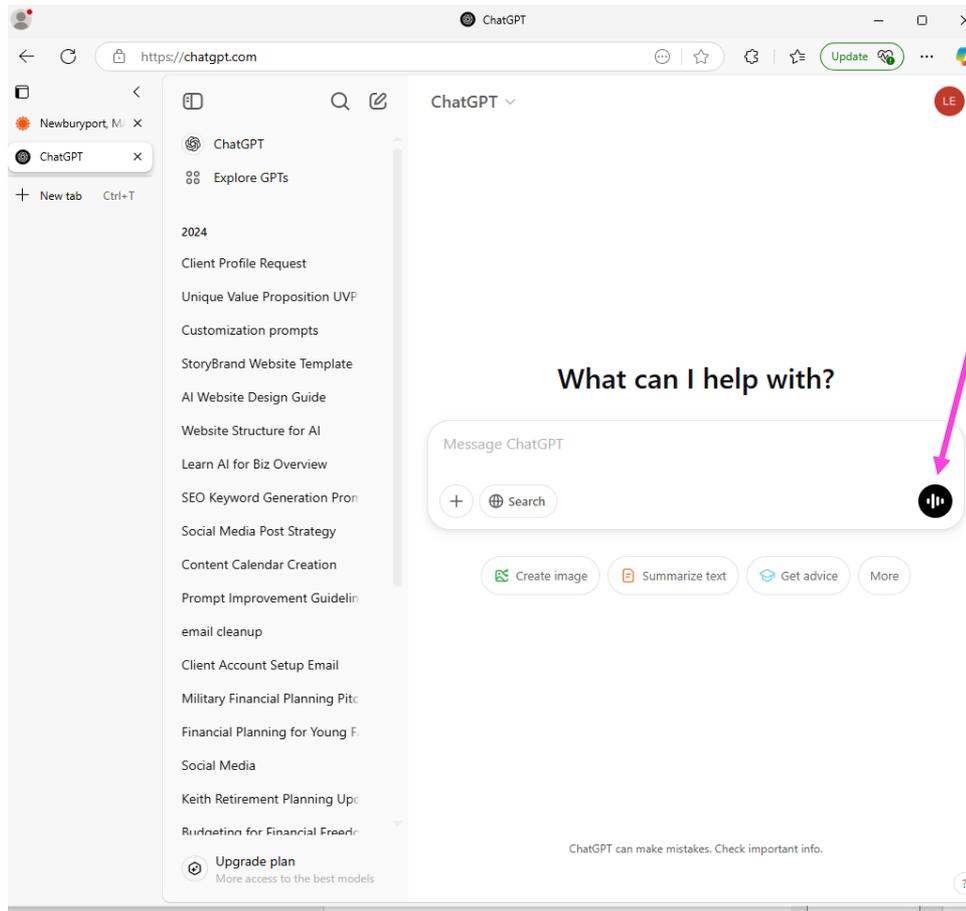

- Upload a file, Voice Mode, Canvas (next session)

The ‘limited time’ part

- You get about 15 messages before it reverts back to the normal FREE version. Then it will give you a time later in the day when you can back and again use the premium features for a while.
- So plan your usage. Do the things that need those features first thing before it reverts back!

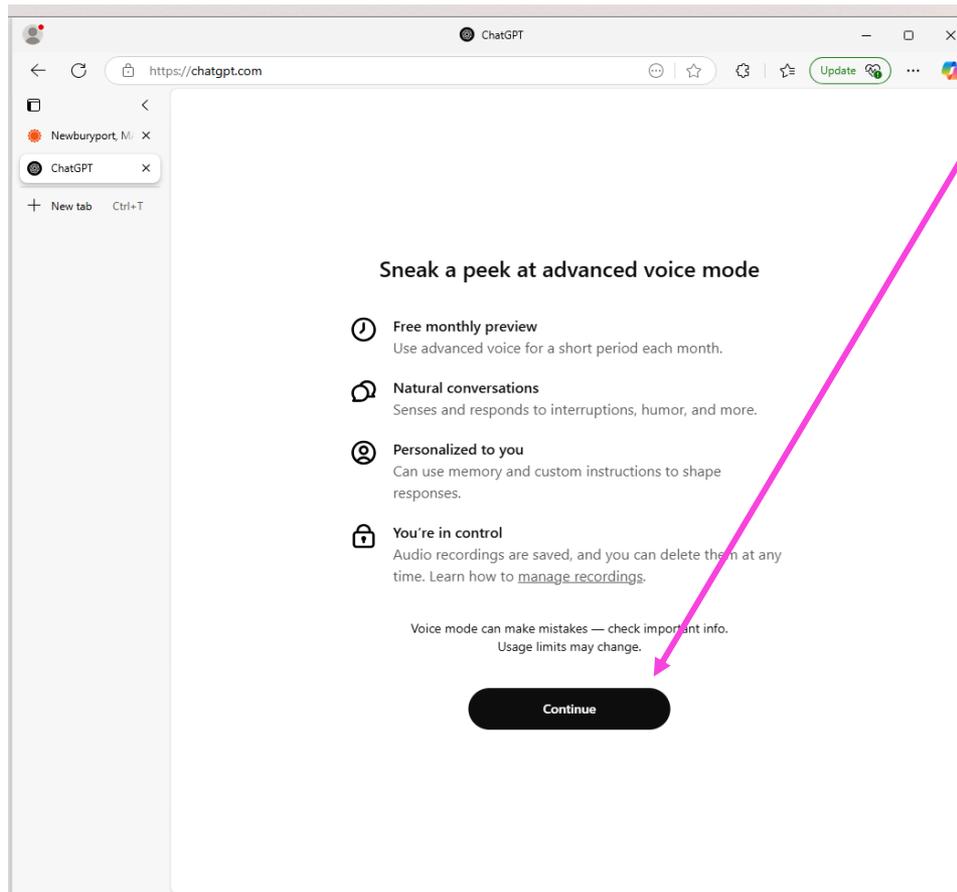

“Use Voice Mode” feature

New premium feature available for limited time each day

- Click on the black button with the lines

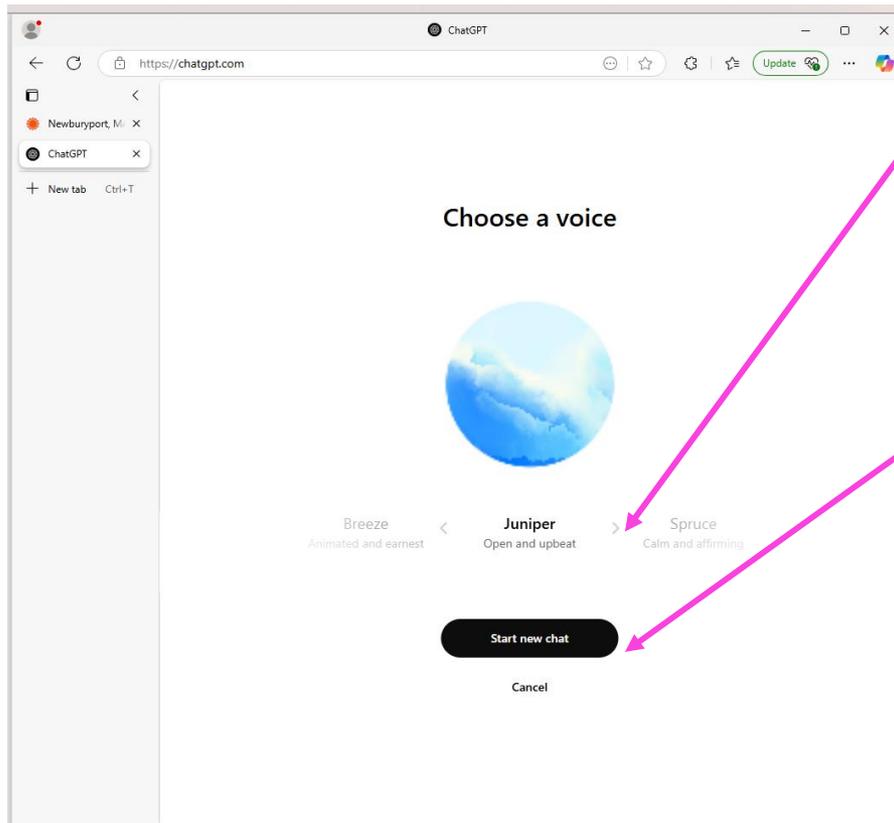

“Use Voice Mode” feature

- This is what you see the first time you use it

“Use Voice Mode” feature

New premium feature available for limited time each day

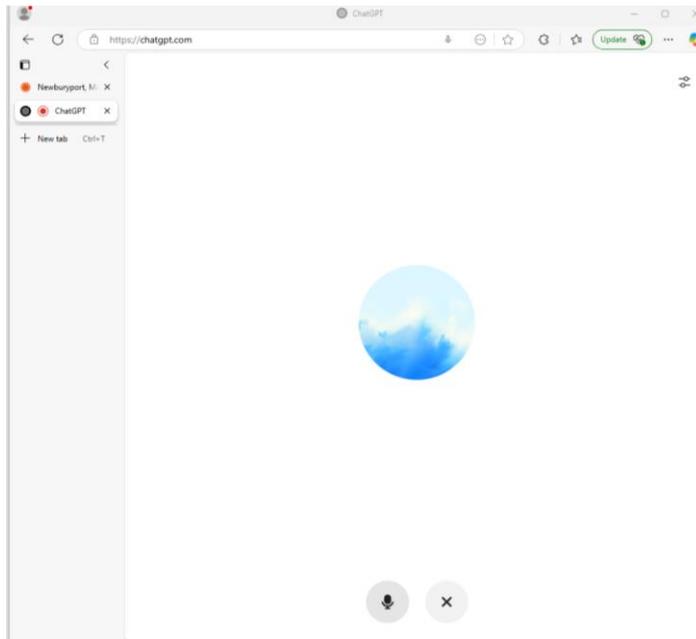

- Click on the arrows to find a voice you like.

- Then Click on the black button to start a new chat.

“Use Voice Mode” feature

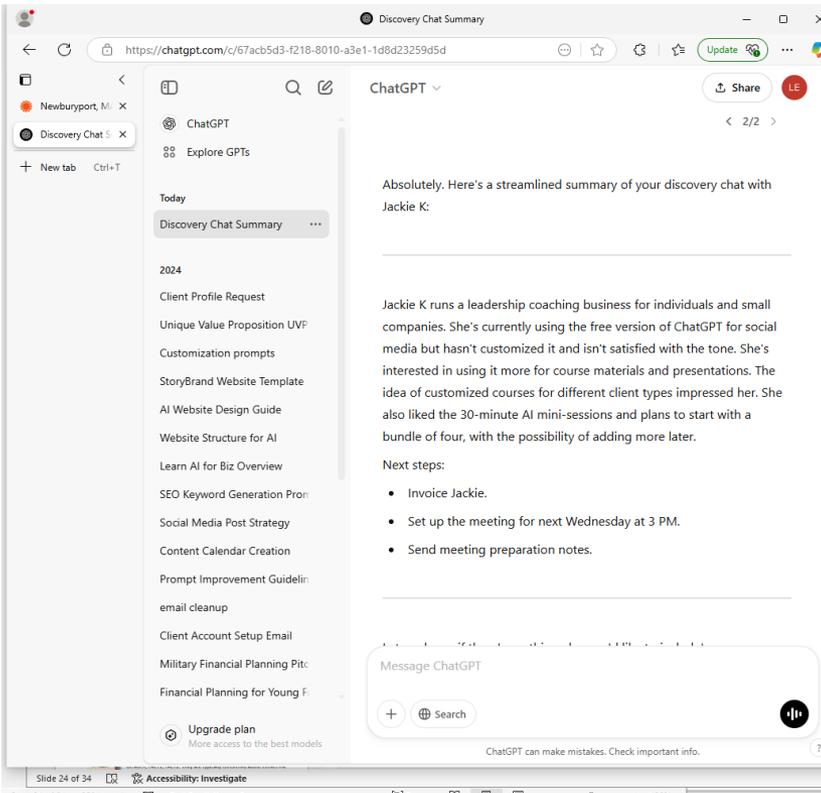

Transcribing notes examples

- When you see this screen, you can start speaking.
- (The microphone button turns the microphone off.)
- Speak in your normal voice. You can give it input or commands.
- For transcribing notes
 - Read the notes from your handwritten ones. OK to embellish or add details as you go. Doesn't have to be in order.
 - Good to say 'End of meeting notes' when you are done
 - Then wait a few seconds and the Voice you chose will read the summarized and organized version back to you and then ask if there is anything else you want.
 - Click the x button.

“Use Voice Mode” feature

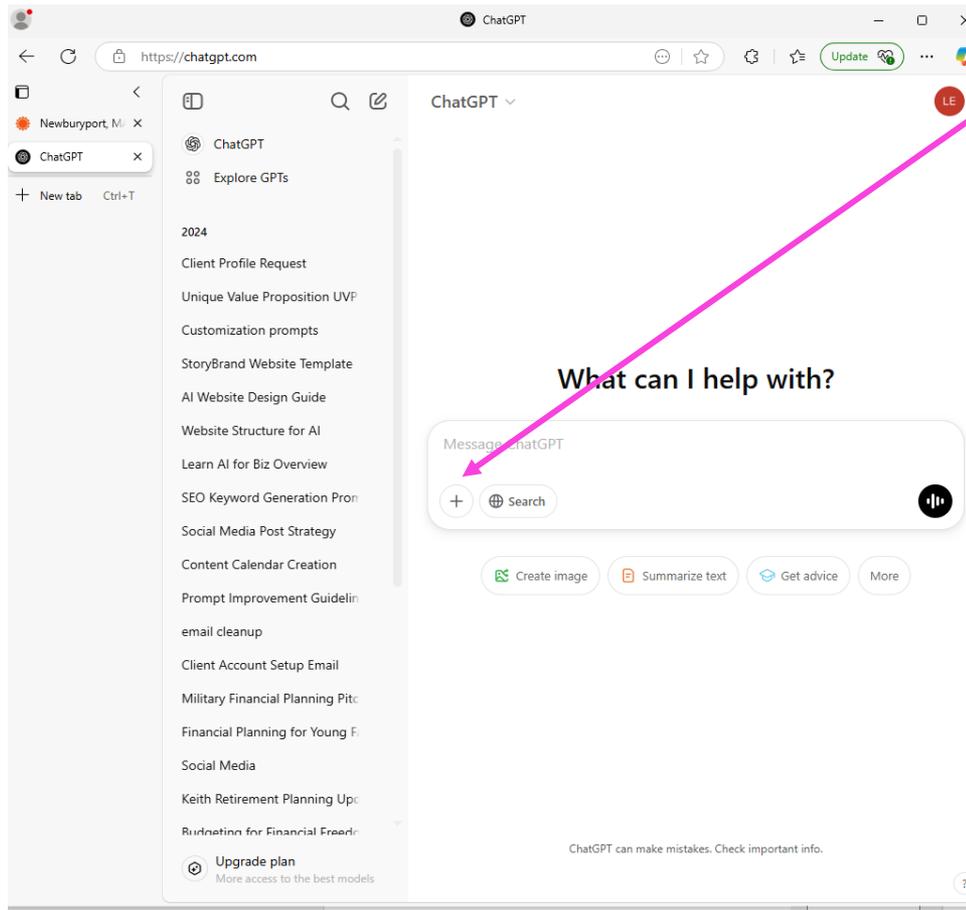

Transcribing notes example

- After the voice window closes, here is the summary of your notes. At this point you can put it in a different chat for that client or for your prospect chats. Maybe put it into a word processing doc where you are keeping all the notes. Or use it to construct a follow up email!
- You can click the black button again and give it more commands to edit the text BUT you have to wait for it to read through the entire thing again before you click the ‘x’. Otherwise it won’t show you that text.

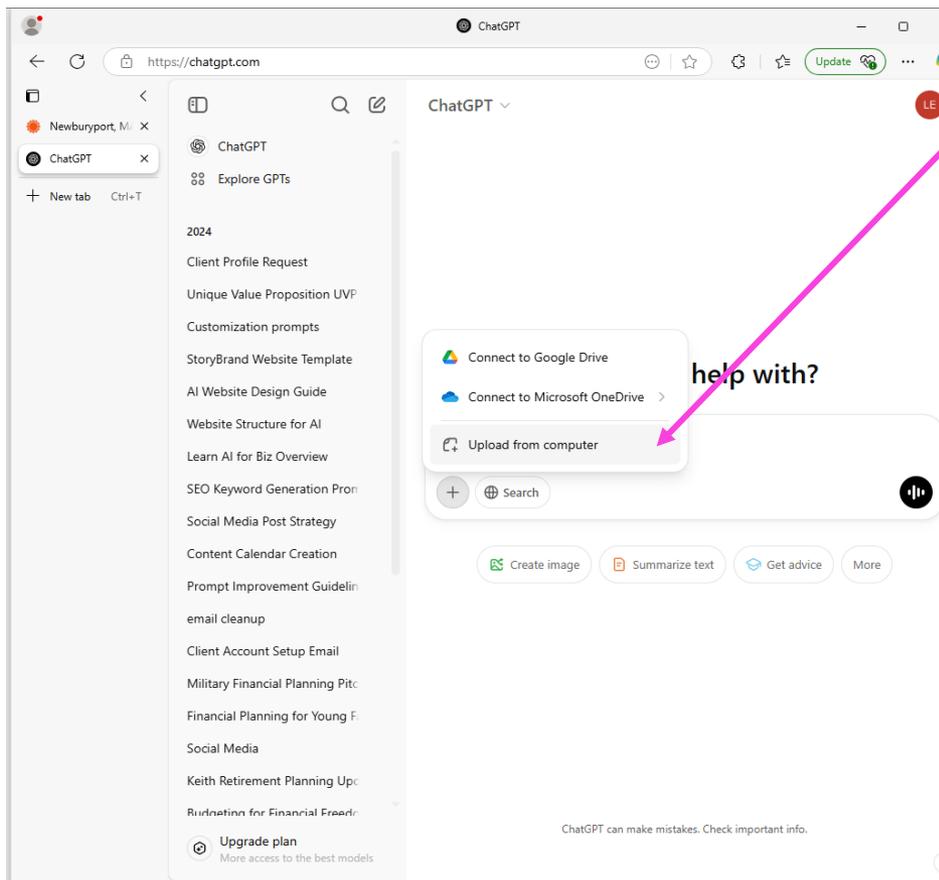

“File upload” feature

New premium feature available for limited time each day

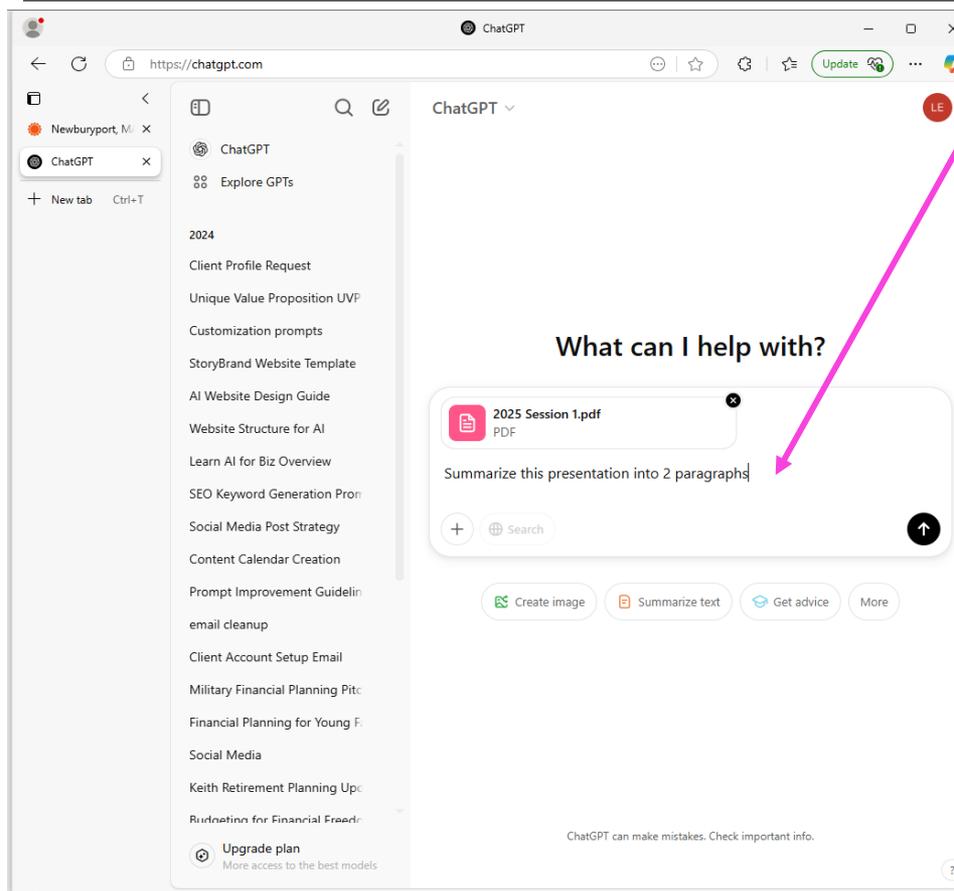

- Click on the '+ sign to start

“File upload” feature

- Click on the source. In this case we are going to upload it from our computer.

“File upload” feature

- You will get a normal file window and you can click into the proper directory to upload the file you want.
- Once it uploads you will see the little icon with the name of the file.
- Now just type in the prompt for whatever you want to do.
- In this case, ChatGPT will read the entire presentation in seconds (!) and summarize it into 2 paragraphs.
