The global art world has seen dramatic evolutions and shifts, especially in the past few years. Amid these changes stands a beacon of innovation and passion: “Was It All a Dream Inc.”. Beginning its journey as a digital augmented reality experience art gallery during the uncertainties of the pandemic, it has since metamorphosed into an avant-garde pop-up gallery that makes appearances in various esteemed locations worldwide. The visionary behind this transformative gallery is artist Hira Majeed. Her inspiration, drawn from the iconic artist Jackson Pollock, set the foundation for her artistry. Pollock, known for his revolutionary drip paintings, became a touchstone for Hira Majeed as she embraced the visceral method of the splatter effect. Each splash of color, each unpredictable stroke, echoed an emotion that surged within her at the very moment of creation. This unscripted approach birthed abstract artworks that defy definition as they mirror the myriad complexities of human emotion.

But Hira Majeed's talents are not limited to just splatter art. Her foray into sketches and drawings melds traditional and digital mediums, creating a hybrid style uniquely her own. This spontaneity ensures that each piece captures fleeting thoughts, emotions, or whims, etching them permanently onto canvas or digital platforms.

However, "Was It All a Dream Inc." is not merely a showcase of Hira Majeed's genius. The gallery has opened its doors to other promising artists, offering them a platform to share their own dreams and narratives. Moreover, in a testament to its commitment to the broader community, the gallery donates art to charities, affirming the belief that art has the power to heal, inspire, and make a difference.

She has been invited to showcase her art and company at one of the world's most celebrated art events: Art Basel Miami. From December 6 to 10, 2023, enthusiasts, collectors, and fellow artists can experience her masterpieces firsthand at Spectrum Miami, Booth #1701.
