

Channeled Message from Spirit through Rhonda Williams for the Sacred Light Fellowship, February 2, 2025

Beloved ones, these times they are a changing. Difficult challenges ahead are an understatement, this is the time for you to stand up for your personal belief systems, cloudy and murky as they may appear in this time and on this day, it is imperative to decide what your position is in your lives and among others. This is a time of war within yourselves. Especially in your spiritual practice. Things seem off, out of place not real but still happening. Confusion and mental anguish, sadness, broken hearts and mistrust will continue to surface to allow you to see your own truth with our guidance and support.

This is not an easy feat and nor should it be. Only the brave and open hearted dare to allow themselves to be vulnerable for it requires courage to take down all walls and expose your humanness. This is why you are here today, at this time, on this planet to be able to supply each other with support for each other to the next level of your God consciousness.

All forgiveness is the gateway to your freedom, love and sense of inner safety. Much depends on your willingness to commit to these objectives; finding ways to love each other down the path of healing and transformation.

We love you and admire you as these trying times bombard your body, mind and emotional spirit. You are brave, strong and suited for this task, global task.

We salute you.
Blessings loved ones!