Wells Fargo Foundation provides NIA Group with financial literacy education dollars
NIA Group will provide financial literacy programs for grades K – 12

The NIA Group, a 501(c)3 financial literacy organization primarily focusing on the education of children in grades kindergarten thru 12th grade has received a grant from the Wells Fargo Foundation to promote financial literacy in underserved populations in Indiana and the Chicagoland areas.

The one-year grant will assist the Nia Group in supporting its mission in helping individuals and families obtain basic financial skills and implement sound financial strategies that will enhance their standard of living.

Edna R. Lee, Executive Director for the NIA Group said the grant was awarded on March 27 and the NIA Group is already developing structured training for volunteers with the Foundation dollars. Programs are expected to begin in the third quarter of this year.

“Nia’s primary population is K-12. However, we focus on a continuum of financial literacy and the entire family is included in our programs. Various programs have been designed for the adult population as well.”

The Nia Group offers a spectrum of programming. Core curriculum components of the program features age-level appropriate interactive material, activities and workshops.
