

Clean Claims. Clear Cash Flow

The Strategic Biller

Even minor inconsistencies in coding, evidence, and timing can quietly disrupt revenue and distort the true financial picture and wellbeing of a practice.

Many practice assume that the billing department is an isolated entity within an organization, but what they fail to realize is that billing does not begin at claim submission.

It begins before the patient even sets foot through your practice door and it is supported before care is even agreed to.

When systems on the front end are aligned, downstream performance stabilizes and collections begin to reflect production and collections with far greater accuracy.

Strong organizations operate with structure, clarity, and consistency. Pulse checks are performed regularly to monitor the overall financial health and wellbeing of an organization.

Execution through strategy

Financial stability is not easy to obtain, but it is possible through practice, consistency, and patience.

Learn how to connect all departments and guide your team towards a common goal,

High collection-to-production ratios are never accidental. They are the result of intentional alignment across the financial workflow. An alignment most practices believe they have, but few truly do.

Jacqueline | JN Dental Consulting

e. Jacqueline@jndentalconsulting.com | p. (916)432-4212