

About Artist

A Korean-born American painter, whose journey as a full-time artist began from witnessing the mortality of loved ones close up. An often reflected theme in her painting is humanity as sojourners in the here and now, collectively yearning for a permanent home, where ongoing redemption and hope for the future weave through current struggles and desolation.

In her work, Nature stands as a fundamental frame of reference. Though it can pose as a perilous force, it also serves as a sanctuary where utmost care and companionship is granted to those who seek refuge. Its versatility in navigating complex networks with one another; and its adaptability to ever changing surroundings is ever inspiring. Nature's unflinching acceptance of death and decay, which only later ushers in birth and growth combined with hope for an unknown future is what keeps Nature in the place of unrelenting audacity.

She debuted with her first group exhibition At Will at KreateHub in Bronx, New York in July 2021, followed by a group art show People at FREIDA in Philadelphia, PA in June 2022. Her solo exhibition Desolation | Consolation was held at The Gallery at W83 in New York, New York from December 2022 through March 2023.

She completed her first residency through Transform Arts NYC in May 2023.
