The governing body of the Vineland Historical and Antiquarian Society is the Board of Trustees. Only the Trustees select and vote on the acceptance of the new Board candidates. Board members serve for three-year terms. The Trustees are solely responsible for overseeing operations of the Society's Museum and establishing policies. For further information, you may request a copy of the Society's By-Laws or contact the Society by telephone or email.

The Vineland Historical and Antiquarian Society was founded in 1864, just three years after the establishment of the town of Vineland. The Vineland Historical and Antiquarian Society's Museum was constructed in 1910 to house the collection of objects, books, photographs, and records.
