Synopsis: One hot summer day in Arkansas, Sachi and Jubie are bored and need an adventure.

Everything changes when Sachi comes up with a brilliant idea. She'll teach Jubie a Japanese dance! She hurries through the gate of Rohwer Relocation Camp to get her red kimono for Jubie to wear.

When she returns, Sachi teaches Jubie about the Japanese festival known as Obon and shows her how to do the dance called Tanko Bushi. Jubie twirls and dances as the red kimono floats and swirls around her.

Not only do Sachi and Jubie find adventure, but they also discover that magic happens when you least expect it!

About the Author:

Jan Morrill was born and (mostly) raised in California. Her mother, a Buddhist Japanese American, was an internee during World War II. Her father, a Southern Baptist redhead of Irish descent, retired from the Air Force. Language Arts & Social Studies

Activity #1: Before Reading:

Look at the cover of The Magical Kimono. Can you tell/write a story about what you see on the cover? How does your story compare to the story in the book?

Activity #2: Book Discussion Following Reading:

- 1. Sachi and Jubie grew bored of watching clouds go by. What did they decide to do then? What do you like to do when you're bored?
- 2. Sachi taught Jubie about kimonos, obis, Obon, and Tanko Bushi. What new things have you learned from your friends?
- 3. What do you like to do? Would you like to teach a friend?
- 4. How are Sachi and Jubie different? How are they the same? What do you think makes our differences special?

For older children (8-10):

The Magical Red Kimono is based on a scene from Jan Morrill's historical fiction, The Red Kimono. (University of Arkansas Press, 2013)

After the attack on Pearl Harbor, questions and fears about the loyalty of people of Japanese descent began to arise. President Franklin D. Roosevelt's Executive Order 9066 ordered approximately 120,000 people of Japanese descent to be interned in ten relocation centers located around the United States. Two thirds of the internees were American citizens. Many were children.

Approximately 16,000 internees were brought from the west coast by train to two different camps in Arkansas: Rohwer and Jerome.

Nine of the ten relocation camps were closed by the end of 1945, with the exception of Tule Lake, which closed in 1946. Most internees returned to California. However, some relocated to other states. Some returned to Japan.

- 1. What is an internment camp?
- 2. Why was Sachi in an internment camp?
- 3. What would it feel like to be forced to leave your home, your friends, and your belongings to move to a camp?
- 4. What would you miss most if you had to move to an internment camp?
- 5. How can learning about the past help us today?

Language Arts & Social Studies

Activity #3: A Few Japanese Words:

Kimono - a long robe with wide sleeves traditionally worn with a broad sash as an outer garment by the Japanese.

- 1. Who wore a kimono in the story?
- 2. Why did Sachi think the kimono was "magic?"

Obi - a broad sash worn with a Japanese kimono 1. Why did Jubie want to take the obi off?

Bon Odori - a Japanese dance held during Obon

Obon - a festival celebrated in August that involves traditional dances, food offerings and family reunions.

1. Why do you think Jubie confused the three words, Obi, Bon Odori and Obon?

Tanko Bushi - A coal mining song from northern Kyushu, Japan. The folk song changes with the times and was adoped in Bon Odori festival dances.
