

Minute regarding Attack on Iran (2026.3.8)

Albuquerque Friends utterly reject a reliance on war and the imposition of the will of one group on another through the aggressive use of military force. We know experimentally that violence cannot end hatred between peoples. Only actions guided by love can do that. The current military attack on Iran and this latest use of armed violence to bring about “regime change” is morally wrong, indefensible, and contrary to our national interests. As stated in the January minute (2026.1.3), Albuquerque Friends ask all Friends to raise their voice in appropriate and effective nonviolent ways to bring this abuse of U.S. military and global power to an end.
