PEACH & NECTARINE STATISTICS

During the last ten years the world production rose by about sixty per cent. The 2011 / 2012 global world peach & nectarine production is expected to be 10 per cent higher than the 2010/ 2011 production. This rise is specially due to the Chinese production where additional fruit trees combined with larger fruits are expected to boost the peach and nectarine yields. The world production is dominated by China, European Union and the United States. The Turkish, Chilean and Argentinean peach and nectarine productions are on the rise since the last five years. Russia is still the number one market for peaches and nectarines since the country doubled its imports during the last five years. Among the EU countries the Italian production has the first rank followed by the Spanish production. The total of the Greek production and the Turkish production equals the Spanish production. The EU countries import about 1 million MT of peaches and nectarines a year since the last seven years. Germany is the largest EU importer followed by France, Poland, United Kingdom and Italy.
