

Recycling – Belizean Style!

The Peninsula has tried and failed to implement a recycling program a number of times over the years. Alas, there is still no good option for plastic recycling in the country, however Bowen & Bowen – a Belize bottling company, has carried out a bottle return policy for many years and it's a good option for keeping glass out of our landfills.

Simply purchase a crate of your favorite beverages from Publics (it can be a mix of items), keep your receipt for the crate charge, and trade in the empty bottles for a discount on your next refill. Then turn in the crate for a refund before you leave.

Maya King Waterfall – a DIY Day Trip!

Only 30 minutes from sandy beaches to jungle waterfalls! A quick drive inland from RVBelize gets you to Maya King - a collection of babbling brooks, glass pools and brisk waterfalls. A well-maintained, all-weather road lets you drive all the way to the park entrance where trails, steps and railings have been carefully installed to allow hikers of all ability levels to reach even the largest of the waterfalls. The swim platform and ladders make it easy to get in and out of the large pool at the top when you're ready for a refreshing swim in mountain water.

Entrance fee is $20BZ per person.

Maya Beach Bistro is back!

Our favorite restaurant is open again! And, it's under new management ... AGAIN!

Voted 'best in Belize' multiple times over the decades, it has changed hands a few times when owners have moved on to other parts of the world, but the food quality and amazing menu have (thus far) remained unsurpassable.

Although the lunch, happy hour and dinner menus are awesome, we prefer their brunch of lobster eggs bennys, duck hash, loaded bloody marv's and so much more!
