Participant Handbook

Welcome to Sunrise!

Thank you so much for considering therapeutic riding with Sunrise, Inc for you, or your loved one. We're thrilled to welcome you to our program! Please read this packet, and sign off on the last page to state the material within has been read, and understood.

Sunrise has served the Richmond and surrounding area since 1980! We were the first program in our area offering EAA (equine assisted activities). EAA specializes in teaching individuals a riding skill, which in turn addresses physical, mental, and emotional needs, too. Riders learn to balance while riding the horse developing better core strength. They communicate with volunteers, staff, and their horse building stronger verbal skills. Horses rely on reading body language to communicate and interpret threats. Learning to "read" a horse, helps a participant to better understand human body language and it's effects, too!

There's something special about sharing space with a large animal. One that can so easily read us and know what we're feeling, even before we do.

Sunrise takes every measure to ensure your experience here at the farm is memorable, safe, and you get the most out of every session. Our staff are PATH trained and certified following stringent industry standard to ensure just that. Our staff have years of equine assisted activities and therapies experience, along with other skill sets that make our program unique, and special.

A Message from the Sunrise Horses

Hay! We just want you to know that horses are prey animals. That means we react to scary, loud things that we aren't expecting. Even though we're trained to handle these situations for therapeutic lessons - we're still horses. So please, do us a favor and help us feel safe by doing the following when at the barn working around us;

- Do not approach us without a staff member present.
- Are you wearing a helmet? You should be!
- ALWAYS wear closed toe shoes working around us.
- Don't walk or run behind us.
- Do not feed us treats or snacks without permission.
- Do not enter our stalls or paddocks without a staff member.
- Talk to us when moving around so we know where you are.
- Don't run, scream, or wave your hands at us aggressively.
- Quietly and easily place, and remove tack items.
- We don't like being yanked around, or having people tease us. Please be respectful when handling us.

Sunrise Inc Policies

Sunrise, Inc. Therapeutic Riding Center was founded in 1980 when Carol and Margaret Inglis, along with Janice Edelman, saw a need in their community. They became certified therapeutic riding instructors, and began giving lessons to riders in need. Today, Sunrise, Inc. is a certified barn under the Professional Association of Therapeutic Horsemanship (PATH). Our instructor(s) are PATH certified through rigorous industry standards, and are CPR/BLS certified through the American Heart Association.

Warning! Under Indiana Law, an equine professional is not liable for an injury to or death of a participant in equine activities resulting from the inherent risks of equine activities.

Participant Eligibility & Dismissal

Who can ride at Sunrise?

Sunrise offers equine-assisted services for individuals with disabilities who need lesson support. Participant qualification is based on each person's ability to take part safely (no medical contraindications preventing participation) and depends on available resources—like the right horse, instructor, volunteers, and class fit.

We're proud to be a PATH Intl. Premier Accredited Center, which means we follow high safety and professional standards. Our experienced staff carefully evaluates each participant before starting and throughout their time in the program.

Because of the unique nature of therapeutic riding, sometimes our programs may not be the right fit for certain individuals. This can be due to physical, behavioral, or safety concerns, based on PATH Intl. guidelines.

We regularly check in on each rider's progress and may make changes if needed to ensure the best experience for everyone. Sunrise also reserves the right to pause or end participation if it becomes unsafe or not in the best interest of the rider or program.
