

PRESS RELEASE

September 30, 2018

I have been taught (and I am sure you have too) that the American system of justice is rooted in the principle that every citizen is innocent until proven guilty. The key word is "proven".

Innocence or guilt is not to be based on emotions or personal biases but on evidence and facts. The Senate confirmation hearings on Judge Kavanaugh have adversely affected our system of justice. The result thus far is a horrifying upending of "due process" fueled by "political-gamesmanship" on the part the minority party in the U.S. Senate. Most of them boast of having law degrees. Really? If so, they should know better than to presume guilt without the indisputable evidence and facts. What are we teaching our children?

Here is a case in point:

I recall during my tenure as a school administrator, a male student could have been and would have been charged with aggravated sexual assault on a female student were it not for my review of the camera footage in the zone where the alleged incident occurred. The truth was revealed because the evidence and facts undeniably negated the female student's sworn statement.

DANGEROUS STUFF PEOPLE! No one deserves to be treated this way. I am not saying that something did not happen to Dr. Ford at age 15 but I am saying that politicians have no right to be playing judge and jury with any American citizen's constitutional right to "due process". In America, you are not guilty to proven innocent! This right should never be reversed because it's politically convenient to do so. Such conduct is TOTALLY UNACCEPTABLE and TOTALLY UNAMERICAN! Our civil liberties are at stake America.
