The healing begins

The Arlington Center for the Arts has opened an exhibition that shows the emotions experienced by those affected by cancer – those diagnosed with the disease and their family and friends.

“A Life After Cancer” features local artists Stephanie Angelo and Rachel Wilcox, who address the topic in multiple ways, from mixed-media installations to drawings and paintings.

This evening, the art center hosts an opening reception for the display. From 5 to 8, you can take part in the art party and contribute to a good cause. Reception guests will be asked to pay a $10 suggested donation to the American Cancer Society. Arlington Center for the Arts, 41
