

GLEN DUNZWEILER

Filmmaker/Producer/Speaker

BIO

Glen Dunzweiler is the creator of the documentary “yHomeless?” and the book “Things I’ve Learned From The Homeless” He taught production design at universities for 11 years (UNLV, UCR, and CSUSB) and then, in 2015, moved to LA to focus on business. His love for communication drew him to want to share his insights into working with the homeless, navigating the differences between academic and business success, and producing visceral entertainment and communications.

“Mr. Dunzweiler has been a valuable asset to B.R.I.D.G.E. [Theatre Project]. His thoroughness, professionalism, preparedness, and mastery of his craft speaks volumes of his character.”

- Joe Quintero (BRIDGE Theatre Project)

“Hearing [Glen Dunzweiler] talk about [his] extensive and widespread career demonstrates to students that they can diversify their portfolio and still have a great life.”

- Rachel Hirst (Youth Business Alliance)

“[yHomeless?] is an insightful, sensitive and thought provoking documentary which changed my perspective of homelessness.”
