

2022 Appel Fellowship

A Fellowship Opportunity for First-Year Students

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION & APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS

*Applications are due Monday, February 28 at 12:00pm PST (noon)

The Appel Fellowship provides first-year students up to $3500 for domestic projects and up to $5000 for international projects to support purposeful, independent experiences that culminate in a meaningful and substantial writing project. This fellowship is meant to enhance the first-year experience by encouraging students to engage in independent writing projects that have the potential to be life-transforming. The ultimate goals of the Appel fellowship are to give students an opportunity to experience writing in a way that may shape the course of their lives in new and exciting ways and to encourage students to share these experiences with others by crafting a thoughtful written project.

Fellows should focus their efforts upon demonstrating to others the importance of writing within a liberal arts context; Appel Fellows are, therefore, encouraged to use writing as a tool for exploration and personal growth. Their writing projects should showcase how writing has enabled them to break through barriers, test their boundaries, and gain a deeper perspective on themselves and their place in the world. Some examples of Appel experiences may include, but are not limited to:

- Conceiving an original writing project (personal essays, interviews, blog or vlog posts, fiction, poetry, screenplay, journalistic writing, podcast, documentary film, etc.), executing, and then sharing that project;
- Writing or editing for an online or print journal or newspaper;
- Pursuing independent study that culminates in a substantial writing project;
- Organizing a service-based writing project with an NGO, non-profit organization, school district, or other community-based institution;
- Exploring an area of interest outside of the fellow's major and then writing about insights generated by the experience;
- Using the act of writing in any number of creative ways to demonstrate personal growth.

The Appel experience must take place during the summer between the student's first and second years. During this time, fellows are encouraged to explore their unique interests irrespective of major preference.

Required responses:

Answer the following in a SINGLE, well thought out essay. Ideally, your essay will grapple in some way with each of the questions below; your essay should present a compelling, polished, and well-organized case for why your project deserves support. Your response should be no longer than 1000 words in length.

1. Please describe your vision for your writing project: What do you hope to accomplish by undertaking this project? How will you effectively execute your project?
2. Why are you called to engage in this kind of sustained writing project?
3. Describe your relationship to writing: what has writing meant to you thus far and what would you like to do next as a writer? How is writing related to your personal and/or professional aspirations?
4. What aspect of your proposal promises to be life altering and deserving of special recognition?
5. Although opportunities to travel may be severely curtailed as a result of the pandemic it may be possible for Appel fellows to travel internationally should conditions prove favorable. Specifically, the international funding policy allows students to travel to any country that is designated as Travel Advisory Level 1 or 2 by the US Department of State and US Centers for Disease Control AND Low, Minimal or Moderate by Crisis24's World Risk Matrix.

Share with us your plans for travelling internationally (outside of your home country and/or the U.S.) or domestically (within your home country and/or the U.S.) and describe how these plans relate to your project goals and will contribute to the transformative nature of your experience. Your travel plans should be practical in scale and the locations you identify should clearly connect to your writing project goals.

Optional Response (strongly encouraged):

Please note that the international travel component of the Appel fellowship is subject to change based on state and national travel advisories and CMC's funded travel policy. The selection committee strongly advises you to answer the following question so that you might demonstrate your willingness to adapt to changing circumstances should they arise.

6. If CMC's policy for funded international travel changes you may not have an opportunity to pursue your Appel project outside of the United States (or outside of your country of residence). Share with us your prospective plans for domestic travel (in either the U.S. or in your home country) and describe how these plans relate to your project goals and will contribute to the transformative nature of your experience. (100 words max.)

Remember: the CMC travel policy may not allow for international travel; your response to this question will only be relevant should the travel policy and associated requirements change and allow you to undertake funded international travel.

Please include the following information after you conclude your essay:

1. What is your current address (city, state, country)?
2. If you are an international student, are you a citizen or resident of the country you plan to visit?

Note: Applications will not be reviewed until all of the above materials have been submitted to Handshake.
