CEO MESSAGE

To our community of children, parents and educators from all over India,

Our everlasting vision of making learning more enjoyable has been challenging as it is an extremely difficult task to do so as the normal routine of memorising concepts can be boring and dry—especially during the pandemic of Covid-19. Nonetheless, our world class research development team combined with our professional editing team has improved our SmartApp to unlock language, culture and symbolic barriers between English and Hindi in simple format to make learning even more enjoyable. We know and understand that, "when the learning becomes enjoyable for the students- it is maximised to it's full complete potential!".

During the past year, Cordova Publications has been working on it's vision of connecting kids with stories they love, in whatever format they prefer—from fiction to non—fiction, chapter books to graphic novels, physical books to digital books. We all know why reading is crucial: it provides myriad academic and social-emotional benefits and is also increasingly a way for children to connect with their peers, their families, their communities and the world at large. Reading the right book can help every child feel seen and heard. And it's that connection that can lay the groundwork for becoming a lifelong reader—and in turn, building empathy, inspiring discovery and finding wonder in the world. We have understood our responsibilities and that is to prepare our global students from India into leaders of the world.

The voice of our schools and parents continues to be critical in our development of our new books for 2022. Both have told us that the key qualities they hope their children develop as they grow up are self-confidence, responsibility, honesty, respectfulness and kindness, and they overwhelmingly believe that the characters their children read about in books can help them achieve these understandings. Both also agree reading is a way to help their child understand different points of view and help their children find their place in the world. And just as many adults turn to books to help us through difficult times, many have also seen how the right story support their child through life's challenges, especially during the challenging times during the pandemic of Covid-19 — a finding that children themselves agree to be true.

Has it ever been more clear that the role of both the schools and parents, caregivers and those of us at Cordova Publications is to help a child discover a book that can change their life and in doing so, change the world? By supporting our youngest readers with online and offline access to engaging, relatable stories-to stories that spark their innate curiosity and answer their desire to be heard-that indeed 'learning should be enjoyable'.

All the best for 2022,

Z.I. Sherwani

CEO of Cordova Publications
