

Mike F. Brown, Jr.

PRESIDENT & CEO

Mike Brown is a distinguished leader and accomplished CEO who serves as President and CEO for the YMCA of Metropolitan Fort Worth. With over 30 years of experience in the YMCA movement spanning seven distinct communities from coast to coast, Brown has exhibited an unwavering passion for leadership, youth, teens, families, and the community throughout his career.

His passion for community advocacy has developed numerous programs to engage and empower youth, teens, and families, such as after-school programs, mentorship initiatives, and summer camps. Each has significantly impacted countless individuals' lives, providing them with tools and resources to achieve their goals and reach their full potential.

Brown's advocacy work extends beyond the YMCA. He is dedicated to solving social issues in communities nationwide. He has been a vocal advocate for access to education and job training programs and has championed efforts to combat hunger and homelessness. He is passionate about creating a world where everyone can access the resources and support needed to thrive. He is committed to promoting equality, justice, and opportunity for all and works tirelessly to create a better world for future generations.

His unwavering dedication to advocating for all people and solving social issues has made him a beloved and respected figure in the YMCA and beyond.

Brown's drive to serve and advocate for all people is deeply rooted in his values and beliefs, born out of the trauma he experienced as a teen and losing his son in 2001 and his wife in 2020.

He has served as a youth pastor, an organizational leader in six cities, and an adjunct professor for two universities. He holds two Master of Science degrees and is pursuing his doctorate in Strategic Leadership at Liberty University.

Brown has six children aged 18–30 and is married to his next love in life.
