

Dress Code Requirements

A studio dress code is necessary for various reasons. First, it encourages unity. Like most sports teams and companies, it gives the studio a professional, clean appearance and fosters a sense of belonging to a larger dance community. Proper dancing gear promotes safety and focused learning while allowing teachers to correct body alignment and movement. In essence, the dress code will contribute to our dancers' overall success. If you have any questions or need help, don't hesitate to get in touch with us. The images below are for reference.

Hair should be pulled back in a ponytail, braid, or bun. Short hair can be held back with a headband or hair clips. Stud earrings are acceptable. All other jewelry should be removed before class.
