SENIOR SPOTLIGHT - ALIVIA

Alivia started taking piano lessons while in Kindergarten. During 5th grade she learned to play the flute. However, she always wanted to play the clarinet and didn't start until her 8th grade year. After 6 weeks of trying to switch out of art to get into band she was really behind and started taking lessons once a week. She eventually fell in love with the bass clarinet. Alivia inspires me by going after what she wants when she gets something in her mind. While this pursuit didn't always come easily, she didn't give up and continues to amaze me with her growth and determination. Alivia, is such a great sister, and friend. She loves, all things Disney, travel, music, good books, and family time. She also finds the time to help others and do what is necessary long after others would have given up. I have enjoyed countless nights watching the band, and will miss the big family camaraderie the band brings. After high school Alivia plans on attending ASU and studying Forensic Psychology.

MENASCO'S MINUTE

"Complacency is the greatest threat to excellence." - Nick Saban

Success is a stepping stone, not a finish line. As a unit, we are coming off a fantastic performance, but our greatest test lies in how we handle that success. Congratulations on a great show, but winning or scoring well last week guarantees nothing for this weekend. We are stepping into a much tougher, more competitive field, and resting on our laurels will get us passed in a heartbeat. In soccer, there's a term called "parking the bus" - when a team gets a lead, stops attacking, and plays purely not to lose. We cannot park the bus. Playing defensive or settling for "good enough" opens the door for other bands to run right past us. We must keep pressing forward, making adjustments, and raising our standard. Staying hungry and avoiding complacency demands continuous refinement from every single member. Pushing for excellence this week means:

- Approaching every rehearsal with the same fire and urgency as if we were coming off a loss.
- Cleaning the smallest visual and musical details instead of coasting on last week's execution.
- Embracing higher expectations from directors and staff as a sign of respect for your potential.
- Refusing to get comfortable, because our competitors are working just as hard to catch us.

A great show sets the new minimum, not the ceiling. Let's double down on our effort, refuse to park the bus, and show everyone what happens when talent refuses to settle.

AZMBA SUNRISE MOUNTAIN 10/17/26

I love these closer shows as they make for shorter days. This is our second festival where I am anticipating 100% attendance from students. We will have one week to apply the feedback given at Canyon View so that we can score higher at Sunrise Mountain. We also will be competing against our sister schools Liberty and Raymond S Kellis. Remember that when we are not performing, you are still easily identified as CeHS Band Members, and your actions reflect yourself, this program, and your school. When they are announcing awards, these are the only acceptable reactions: If another school places higher than us, clapping. Congratulate them or say nothing.

If we are the highest placing band: cheering and congratulating each other. Be mindful and demure.

We are not that band who needs to tear others down in order to build ourselves up. Words we live by at Centennial: Honor, Excellence, and Integrity. Everything we do, we do it with these traits. Whether we succeed or fall short, we do so as a unit and with grace and dignity. These brief interactions at comps are sometimes the only viewpoint people have of Cen10 - show them who we are.
