As a showrunner and architect of multiplatform story universes, Jon Cooksey shapes iconic entertainment in all genres of film, television and digital that has resonated with millions of viewers across the globe. His work has won or been nominated for Emmy, Humanitas, Gemini, Leo, Cable Ace and Canadian Screen Awards in TV, plus numerous awards for his comedic feature documentary about saving civilization, How to Boil a Frog.

From his seminal work as head writer/showrunner on Rugrats (both TV and feature), to his genre work on shows like Primeval: New World, SPIDES and Killjoys, Jon has focused intensively on stories that will capture the Millennial and now Gen Z demographics, with all the diversity and social awareness that requires. He was at the forefront of developing for alternative and interactive platforms, and continues to work in non-linear as well as linear story-telling.

Jon has recently completed a pilot script for the one-hour comedy/music series Alchemy, which will be going to market soon, with significant attachments and an amazing team. His half hour comedy Hood Island, for Wojack Productions and Spike & Sadie Entertainment, is currently under consideration at the CW and the CBC. He's also preparing to pitch the original series Wild Frontier as well as a reboot of his popular supernatural series The Collector. On the production front, he's currently working with TITAN1STUDIOS to complete the Events at Unity Farm VR game, which is getting huge positive reaction in its early release phase, and is beginning production on the 6x11 minute webseries Welcome, which he created.

Jon infuses his cutting edge TV work with a depth of influences that enrich his storytelling in genres ranging from comedies to YA thrillers to family dramas. Credits as TV showrunner include Arctic Air, Shattered, The Best Years and The Collector. He's developed 18 pilots for various prodcos and networks, including Comedy Central, FX and ITV (UK), and has run series for Disney Channel and Nickelodeon in the US, for Rogers, Global, CBC and Space in Canada. Altogether he's produced over 150 hours of TV.

On the feature side, Jon has lately tended toward historical fiction. He's recently written Los Angeles: Being the True Story of the largest Lynching in the History of America, and the birth of a City, about the mystery behind the Chinatown Massacre of 1871, based on IP. Other recent feature scripts include The Oracle's Wife, a biopic about M. King Hubbert, one of the great minds of the 20th century who foresaw the end of the Oil Age, and Hindenburg LZ-129, a film noir thriller that uses the famous disaster as a springboard.

In general Jon's goal is to break the boundaries of current entertainment silos, creating broad audiences across multiple platforms (XR, games, TV/digital series, movies, live events, musical theatre, storyworlds, theme park rides, etc.), with stories that have an international appeal. Also, start a farm and write a satirical kids' book about political insanity. Both in progress.
