

Hello Friend!

Thank you for considering our counseling group to guide you in your recovery.

We know what it's like to feel intense waves of panic, great sadness, rage and overwhelming confusion as a result of living with a loved one that is suffering from an addiction. Obsessive behaviors in an attempt to control the chaos that unleashes itself in a home with active addiction harmed our family. Attempts to control never solved any of the myriad of problems and only increased our woe.

We suspect if you are reading this, you can relate. Fortunately, we found a way out of this madness through our own 12 step programs and counseling. It's through our recovery journeys that we have discovered a passion for helping other families affected by addiction. We recognize the need for specific counseling to address the very unique challenges that families face when confronting the complexities of addiction.

We hope to be part of your Connection to Recovery!

Sincerely,
