

How Our School MAKES WINTER WEATHER DECISIONS

Grounded in Montessori Philosophy

Montessori Academy of Owasso

Respect for the Whole Community

Montessori education recognizes that children are part of a larger community that includes families, caregivers, and educators.

When winter weather arises, we consider how decisions impact everyone, from safe travel and work schedules to caring for one another well.

Honoring Family Rhythms

Montessori philosophy respects the rhythms of real life, not just the classroom schedule.

When winter weather disrupts normal routines, we make decisions that aim to reduce strain and support families navigating the day as a whole.

Supporting Adults Who Support Your Children

Montessori communities thrive when educators feel safe, supported, and emotionally well. Weather decisions that honor teachers' ability to travel safely and arrive grounded ensure they can fully and calmly support the children in their care.

Trust and Clear Communication

Montessori philosophy is built on trust in thoughtful adults and consistent systems.

We communicate decisions clearly and intentionally so families can plan with confidence, knowing care guides every choice.

We're in This Together

Montessori education is built on partnership between school and home, especially during moments that require flexibility and trust. Thank you for sharing responsibility with us as we navigate winter weather with care for children, families, and educators.
