Fight Your Impulse to Fix It

How (and why) to get comfortable watching your child make mistakes

Have you ever watched your child do something and known, with absolute certainty, that it was not going to work?

Every part of you wants to jump in.

This week's podcast is less about whether children can tolerate mistakes and more about whether we can tolerate watching them make them.

That feeling can be surprisingly uncomfortable. We want to prevent the spill, fix the problem, save time, avoid frustration, and sometimes simply make our own anxiety go away.

But when we step in too quickly, we may accidentally take away the very experience our children need in order to notice a problem, adjust their thinking, and learn what to do differently next time.

We'll talk about the Montessori idea of control of error, why struggle does not always mean something has gone wrong, and how to tell the difference between a child who genuinely needs our help and one who may simply need a little more time.

Sometimes the hardest part of raising capable children is keeping our hands in our pockets for another thirty seconds.

And sometimes, that is exactly when the learning happens.

Looking for Parent Reading Partners

We have so many new readers and they would love to read a book to you!

Each day from 12:30 - 1:00, we would love to have a parent listen to students read aloud.

Send Ms. Elizabeth a message if you are interested, and we will send you our volunteer packet and background check.

Trunk or Treat Date Change

In order to allow more families to participate in this fun annual event, we are moving Trunk or Treat to THURSDAY, OCTOBER 29.

If you have not yet signed up to decorate your trunk and pass out goodies, the volunteer form is on the school app.

Do You Have a Skill to Share?

We love to introduce our students to interesting hobbies, jobs, and talents.

Do you have something you would like to share such as woodworking, cooking, artistic talent, special animals, etc?

Let the office know if you would like to present to our students or create a hands-on activity.
