

GENOCIDE? REALLY? EASY REBUTTAL

By Rick Heizman, Oct 12, 2017

When someone (typically an ignorant or arrogant - or both - journalist or regressive leftist) brings up the word 'Genocide' pertaining to the conflict in Rakhine State, Myanmar, it is an indication that they know nothing about the reality of the situation. Furthermore, they don't even know how to define the word 'Genocide' correctly. But, they think they know everything, and more.

Ask the question, "Is the population of Bengali Muslims ('Rohingya' to the misled) growing or shrinking?"

All sources say that the Bengali Muslim population has one of the highest birthrates in the world! And, that is the problem! The population of Bengalis of Bangladesh, as well as the Bengali Muslims in Rakhine State has swelled at alarming rates.

And, the hundreds of thousands of Bengalis that fled into Bangladesh are not in a foreign land - it is their cultural homeland after all. The language is the same, the religion is the same, the style of clothing is the same, the traditions and customs is the same.

Even, the intolerance of others, the religious supremacism, and bigoted views of all non-Muslims is the same.

As well, the attacks, village burnings, and slaughters of Buddhists, Hindus, and ethnic minorities in Bangladesh and in Rakhine State are the same.

Has anyone ever heard of a Genocide where the supposed victims population is actually and rapidly growing?
