

Educational change requires 3 forms of understanding * a critique of the way things are
 * a vision of how they should be
 * a theory of change for how to move from one to the other Systemic transformation in education must appreciate the complexity of the education system and appeal to that system at multiple levels simultaneously

