Tips to Transition Your Spaces

Here in New England we are transitioning to warmer weather (finally!) so this is always a great time to make some small shifts to home decor and curb appeal. I personally find that while in the winter months I want more candles, blankets, and throw pillows around to keep things cozy, as it get warmer I find myself decluttering and editing spaces to lighten things up a bit.

Some ways to make small easy changes:

1. Door Decor- There are lot of ways to make your entry ready for visitors (or to make it more enjoyable for you when you walk in each day)! First things first - if you have any leftover evergreens or wreaths from the holidays throw them out! Even if those evergreens are going strong, they do not belong on your front door or stoop anymore. Place a new fresh doormat, put fresh plants beside the door and sweep off that salt and grime leftover from winter.

Here I lightened up my front door with a fresh coat of paint, got a new door mat and added some flowers to get ready for the warm weather.

2. Lighten Up the Scents - I have to admit that I only recently stopped burning my fir tree candle leftover from the winter. But candles are not just for the cold weather! Placing some diffusers and light scented candles is always a nice way to lighten up the scents in your home. Some of my favorites:

Tatine Candle - Garden Mint

Farm & Sea Candle - Salt Air

Sydney Hale & Co Candle - Bergamot & Black Tea

3. Change Out Some Pictures - Putting up pictures of sandy kids at the beach and sunsets is an instant mood changer and will make you happy in your space. Don't worry - this does not necessarily have to be a labor intensive endeavor. Just change out a few of those sledding and/or ski pictures and exchange them for the beach!

I placed some favorite beach pictures in light wood frames to get me excited for beach days to come!

Trend Alert: Moving Away From White Trim

I grew up in a center entrance colonial which had really beautiful molding painted in Benjamin Moore White Dove (don't ask how I know that...I was an interesting kid growing up....). And as I have moved in working with my own homes and other projects, the assumption has always been to paint the trim white in a higher gloss.

However with white walls making a comeback I think there is something to be said about moving outside the white default. Colored trim can provide interest and be a great way to highlight great molding or hide mediocre molding depending on what you are looking to do.

Here are some examples of spaces with colored trim that I can get behind....

What are we up to at EWP Interiors?

Above is a mood board for a volunteer project at a middle school teachers' lounge. Erin has been working with the PTO to put together a space that the teachers will love! After all they have done in the midst of the pandemic they deserve an updated space where they can relax. Orders are coming in and we expect to have it done for them when they return in the fall! Keep checking our Instagram for the before and after pictures!
