

Upskilled – One of Australia's Leading and Highest Quality Registered Training Organisations

Upskilled participants receive huge government subsidies in order to play instrumental role in preparing Australia's workforce for the future

Upskilled's recent news video outlines the benefits of the training packages offered by one of Australia's leading training providers. The video discusses how Upskilled works directly with major corporate players across every sector of industry to deliver training courses that enable participants to develop skillsets that set them apart in the competitive labour market.

Indeed, the video points out that Upskilled delivers more than 30 qualifications across 7 key work-related disciplines, namely Business & Administration, Management, Project Management, Sales and Customer Contact, Information Technology, Human Resources and Training and Occupational Health & Safety. To emphasise this element of working with the private sector, the video explains that Upskilled's trainers stand out from those of competing services by being entirely composed of individuals that are “experienced with working in and around commercial organisations”.

In these difficult economic times, one of the most attractive aspects of the Upskilled program is that it qualifies for extensive government subsidy and funding. The video explains that the “Australian government's desire and commitment to enhancing the skillset of the Australian labour force has led to a comprehensive framework of funding schemes and incentive opportunities for training and learning opportunities”. Upskilled benefits considerably from these programs, meaning that participants in Upskilled's raft of training courses can benefit from such schemes as The Australian Apprenticeships Incentives Program, The Productivity Places Program (PPP) and The Strategic Skills Program (SSP). This makes the cost of training and development with Upskilled to be within reach of even the economically disadvantaged.

In addition to the economic advantages of training with Upskilled, the video also explains the extent to which the company has covered the Australian mainland. Upskilled currently operates in more than 70 locations across Australia, and these are strategically located to ensure that they cover every state and territory in both metro and regional areas. The emphasis with Upskilled is that every Australian should have the opportunity to gain the skills required to excel in the modern workplace, not just urban-based dwellers.

In accordance with this, the video discusses Upskilled's extensive online training capacity, which further contributes to the accessibility of the training programs delivered by Upskilled. The video explains that “Upskilled runs a series of e-learning, online training modules that are available 24/7, 365 days a year”, and with the e-learning segment of the company's training package being fully compliant with contemporary mobile devices, there is no need to be concerned with PC or Mac access, as Upskilled's training courses can be accessed 'on the road' at all times. The emphasis is very much on interactivity, with course assessors available at all times for support with each of Upskilled's e-learning courses.

The video concludes by detailing Upskilled's commitment to delivering a multi-faceted range of courses, presented by the most capable and skilled trainers, and making them available to all Australians, regardless of income bracket or location. It is this credo, they argue, that has made Upskilled one of Australia's leading Registered Training Organisations.
