Job Title	Clinical Director
Company Name	Michelle Harwell Therapy
Location	Highland Park, California
Department	Clinical
Salary Range	Based on experience

Job Description/Overview

Michelle Harwell Therapy (MHT) is a vibrant and diverse community of psychotherapists dedicated to the creativity that life demands to be fully alive. We are committed to deep reflection and deliberate action in the world. On a daily basis, we engage in high quality collegial consultation and supervision, which holds and supports the heartbeat of our clinical work. Our innovative and integrative training program blends contemporary psychoanalytic theory with an interdisciplinary approach that appreciates body-based and brain-based approaches.

Mission: At MHT, we're cultivating a growthful community of therapists committed to becoming fully ourselves, teaching each other how to make our humanness available, and in turn providing high quality psychotherapy to the neighborhood we love.

We are seeking a dynamic Clinical Director in a pivotal time of growth at MHT. This unique position will require a diverse set of skills to support and expand our efforts in providing our community with high quality learning experiences that blend intellectual rigor, creativity and a recognition of our humanity as our greatest asset.

MHT is looking for a thoughtful leader and collaborator with a sharp clinical mind anchored in humility and reflection. This role is for someone who thrives in a team environment, seeks to enable the potential of others, and pairs great communication skills with a commitment to accountability and clinical excellence.

The Clinical Director (CD) is a core part of the leadership team at MHT which is made up of the Owner/Creative Director Michelle Harwell PsyD, LMFT and Executive Director Lauren Furutani, LMFT. The leadership team works closely to integrate the mission and values of MHT in our daily operations.
