

MARIAH TAYLOR

Mezzo-soprano

BIOGRAPHY

Mariah Taylor is a Puerto Rican mezzo-soprano dedicated to creating meaningful musical experiences that deeply connect with audiences. Known for her expressive storytelling and warm stage presence, she is passionate about sharing classical music with audiences.

Mariah has performed throughout upstate New York at venues including The Hochstein School, the Rome Art and Community Center, and the Adirondack Bank Center during Utica Comets games. Her performances have showcased a wide range of repertoire spanning opera, art song, musical theater, and crossover works, reflecting her versatility as a young artist.

In the summer of 2025, Mariah traveled to southern France, where she made her international debut in the opera Carmen. This experience further strengthened her passion for operatic performance and international artistic collaboration. Continuing her growing international career, she will be performing in Germany in Mozart's The Magic Flute and will also appear in a music festival in Greece.

As an emerging artist, Mariah is committed to continual artistic growth and to bringing emotional authenticity to every performance. She enjoys exploring a wide range of repertoire while developing her craft as both a vocalist and a performer. Mariah continues to pursue opportunities that allow her to connect communities through music and share the transformative power of the arts with audiences around the world.
