

(Directly in the middle of the picture, above the village, is Turnbull Hill. The building left of center is Camp Pono, your retreat headquarters)

Do you, yourself, need to unplug, re-center and revitalize your own spirit and connectivity to nature, thereby being in a better space to do the same for your clients and practice?

My vision is that upon experiencing the retreat yourself and seeing what is available to you and your clients, you would be able to offer one yourself, using me as an assistant, guide, cook, etc. and this space as your location. This first one I am offering, is specifically for practitioners to see what you may be able to offer in the way of a location and amenities. As practitioners we would brainstorm the possibilities and come up with a program that works for you and your clients. The program (theme; practices; modalities, etc) would be up to you. You could charge your clients whatever you feel is appropriate for your services and you would pay me an administration/facility fee for my services. All to be determined based on what you come up with.

For example, I'm only charging $1800 for 7 days, all inclusive. This kind of retreat could easily warrant $2500+ per person, but we really want to serve...right?... so let's make it enticing at $1800.00. For example, you pay me a flat fee of $4500 (for administration/facility) for 5 people that's $900 for me and $900 for you per day.

If you had a place, a guide, a host, a fellow practitioner to assist you in your own wellness retreats, how amazing and profitable would that be for you, your business and your clients? The kind of retreats that are being offered by "well known" practitioners/gurus, start at well over $4,000 per person. The vision I have in mind for these retreats are so much more personalized, peaceful, grounded...holistic. What vision would you have? Join me in collaborating on what we can offer. As practitioners we would brainstorm the possibilities and come up with a program that works for you and your clients. Check out the retreat offerings for yourself first, thenAdd "Holistic Maui Retreats" to the services you offer your clients!