Top stories of the week

Colombian supplier CI International says it is expanding its physical supply operations after receiving approval for a restructuring plan with its banks. The new operation is at Coveñas - Tolu, south of Cartagena in Colombia's Gulf of Morrosquillo. "With this new operation CI International will be the only one with a license from the Port Authority to supply bunkers, both VLSFO and LS MGO LS," company president Jaime Alberto Ochoa Muñoz told Ship & Bunker. The new operation comes in addition to CI International's existing supply operations at Cartagena, Barranquilla, Santa Marta, and Buenavetura. As Ship & Bunker previously reported, in June Colombian company regulator the Superintendencia de Sociedades added Bogota-based CI International to its list of companies in insolvency proceedings. Muñoz says the company is now "healthy" having reached a restricting agreement with its banks, and supply operations have resumed at all ports. "Thanks to all clients that keep trusting Ci International fuels for bunkering all vessels arriving in Colombian Ports," he added. (Ship & Bunker, October 25, 2021)

Marine fuel supplier Dan-Bunkering has hire two senior traders in Dubai. Arzu Kocak Ermurat and Gennady Volneiko joined the firm's Dubai office as senior bunker traders last month, the company said in an emailed statement on Wednesday. Emurat was previously a senior bunker trader for Sing Fuels in Istanbul, and Volneiko was a bunker trader for Sing Fuels in St Petersburg. "They both bring a wealth of trading experience from the industry," Kasper Fulton Stiedl, managing director of Dan-Bunkering (Middle East) DMCC, said in the statement. "With their experience and different cultural backgrounds, we expect they will bring dynamic as well as valuable skills to our office here in Dubai." (Ship & Bunker, October 22, 2021)
