D. Donovan – Sr. Reviewer, Midwest Book Review

“Don’t believe in miracles? The second updated edition of the book Continued Miracles: Inspiring Testimonies of God at Work in The Lives of Everyday People show how God removes obstacles to lead believers to better paths, whether it be away from addiction and prison or via circumstance and connections such as pets.”

Debra L. Stout authored Continued Miracles to give hope. The many stories from a variety of diverse people concerning their personal miracles will instill hope. Debra takes the book beyond these stories and shares guidelines as the reader seeks their own miracle. To quote Nancy from the book, “God is always doing small miracles. We just need to recognize them.” I think this quotation sums up this book perfectly. It is not that God is not doing miracles; it is we don’t look for them. From addiction to cancer, from runaway dogs to runaway children, this book shows miracle after miracle. Besides all the miracle stories, Debra gives 7 keys to seeing your own miracle. If you don’t believe in miracles, you will by the time you finish reading. If you already believe in miracles, you will recognize them and be encouraged.”

The Book Life Prize

Plot/Idea: “Stout aims to inspire Christian readers to trust God for miracles in this uplifting collection of testimonies. Beyond using real-life examples of healings, deliverance from addiction, financial success, and more, she offers readers seven steps to receiving their own miracle, from praying to reading about the miracles that took place in the Bible.”
