Eyes to the Skies in August

Nowadays, many of us don't pay attention to the night sky as much as we used to. Modern technology or age might be the culprits, but it happens to most of us at one point or another. For those of us who are avid sky gazers, it's common knowledge that August is one of the best months to watch the skies, the main reason being the Perseid Meteor Shower.

What are the Perseids? This meteor shower is an annual event, typically running between mid-July to the end of August. It happens when Earth passes through the bits of debris left behind by the Swift-Tuttle Comet back in 1992. Though the shower runs for 4-6 weeks, it always hits its peak between August 11-13. At its peak, you may be able to spot as many as 100 meteors an hour; on

Announcements

-The bi-annual newsletter (Fall Edition) will be completed and sent out late next week. If you have changed mailing addresses since the last time you updated registration, please let us know ASAP!

- Justin is slightly behind with electric, but will be reading it within the next few days. Any other amounts you have due will also be listed on this month's post-it (as some have dropped off their posted electric without checking for other fees due). Please pay these as soon as possible, as we are getting to the end of the year!

Lodge Corner

New shirts are in and ready! These include 4 types of zip-up hoodies, 2 types of camp shirts, 4 types of regular hoodies, and youth t-shirts and hoodies! Check them out if you've been hoping for some new apparel options!

This week's house pizza is Chicken Pesto, Italian Soda is Tiger Blood (Strawberry, Coconut, Vanilla), Baked Good is Raspberry White Chocolate Strudels, and Cookie is Monster Cookie.

Eyes to the Skies Con't

a REALLY good year, you can expect to see up to 200! This year, the peak is expected on August 13. Peak time on the peak date is usually between 2-4 a.m., with this year being no exception at 3 a.m. On years with a fuller moon/more moonlight, the visibility isn't the best, but this year, the moonlight will be minimal, so expect a fantastic show if you're awake for it!

Even if you aren't able to watch the 3 a.m. show on August 13, bear in mind that you're still able to see plenty of meteors from 10 p.m. on, all this month!
