

SELINA FLAVIUS

AUTHOR, SPEAKER & PERSONAL FINANCE COACH

PROFESSIONAL PROFILE

After enjoying 15 years in business development often as the only Black female in the team, Selina decided to pivot careers and retrain as a finance coach and advisor, she founded Black Girl Finance to directly coach women struggling with managing money, she has also worked with big brands to provide personal finance and diversity and inclusion workshops. She has created the Black Girl Finance podcast and published the Black Girl Finance - Lets Talk Money Book

PERSONAL FINANCE WORKSHOPS AND TALKS

Selina, has spent the last 2 years growing and building the Black Girl Finance Brand and coaching business and has along the way coached hundreds of women on the topics of personal finance, the best ways to manage day to day money, as well as grow wealth for the future.

She has also created her own workshops and created and conducted workshops for Universities and corporate clients as well as appeared as a panelist for other business events.

THE INTERSECTIONALITY OF THE GENDER AND ETHNICITY PAYGAP WORKSHOPS AND TALKS

Selina is passionate about highlighting the gender and ethnicity disparities through education and positive discussions in corporations to ensure these gaps are highlighted and tackled.

She uses her own experiences of often being the only black and/or female within her teams, and also highlights the statistics around these gaps and disparities and the knock on impact they have.

She is currently working with the money and pensions service to ensure that the voice of her clients are considered in their 10 year UK financial well-being strategy.
