

How to adapt

Prompt: The north sea

Take a look at yourself. Take a look around. How you can make such a bold statement about a nation you basically know nothing about, besides what you do not get fed by information regarding a conflict is huge. Fix it immediately.

Question one: Why will not a single Ukrainian migrant in Norway want to move back to their nation?

Question two: Who is in charge of where highly educated immigrants should be placed?

The reason why teaching is a profession of stability, is because of a circus planet driven by many different groups of highly influential capabilities. And that is ok because of the future and the imminent errors, making Earth different.

GEC (and its partners) has already given the victory to Russia. The more you fight against, the more of a joke this whole circus will become. To bomb cargo ships with non-GMO grains and food, is probably the stupidest action.

There will be no collaboration whatsoever (except with team-members) until the first quarter of 2027. This is due to a systematic driven planet who clearly had some issues with what you call: 'didn't get the memo'. Thank you for making a transition so f hard. It will not hurt a single f joke of you. And that is guaranteed. Most things you need, care about or try to fight against, can still be functional for several decades. Problematic it is.

Russia is granted the victory, as their demands are historically reasonable. And this seems already set.
