

Temperature as wave functional ‘traps’

Statement: Stored wave functions in proteins equals radiation

Rumors (not confirmed):

- Native Americans - Long hair gives advancements to reach the spiritual realm
- Buddhist monks - Hair is not needed for inner peace and the spiritual realm

Resulting in: The amount of human beings in your culture defines your (many's) need for connectivity (?).

Proteins seem to be the molecule we should study when it comes to measuring what kind of holographic matter being used to store ‘heat’. It might also relate heavily towards consciousness. As a result of resulting requirements.

If movement creates and eliminates, it seems rather common that friction itself creates heat.

Question: How does temperature affect you and your behavior?

- Clothes/Mood/Consciousness

Meat and vegetables both come from a conscious state being created. Meaning, all you need is basically heat-related wave functions to gain energy, metabolism and chakra-alignment..

By this meaning that proteins equals life, equals temperature, equals consciousness (not necessarily in that order).

To use heat as technology, proteins are preferable, maybe.

Temperature fluctuations creates perceivable holographic matter

