

A document about the ‘d_(ick)evil’

There is so much humor within the spiritual realm, if you see it. Yin and Yang is probably the most describing text around the positive/negative, black/white, love/hate and so fourth. An interesting topic.

The paradox: You are a living being and if you laugh over something like this, it is being seen as a defense mechanism. The defense mechanisms fit Yin. You are basically borned into spiritual warfare, in the matter world. You as a human being have never done anything wrong, unless you do it and your morals and values are against your point of view. So you might have to be a late teen or an adult to understand.

You can always choose a side and be happy with that, and it might give you greater results than trying to understand the Yang side. This is difficult because of learning and understanding probabilities. The darkness is easier, the light requires thinking and understanding. It is more difficult to touch the light than the dark. This is because there is more darkness in our universe where the light can not attach and give glory to. Ref: space - there is lots of darkness where the light can not attach to. The vacuum as it is called.

An example: Sabotage your neighbor's window with a rock. The light will appear and give you a negative response in behavior from the neighbor. If the neighbor is okay with a broken window there is a low consciousness level. Or the devil is already there. The light is understanding and the dark is searching. There is already a document on Yin & Yang, which is not available at the moment, it might be published.
