

Acceptance - and what to accept vs. how to accept

- To know thy differences

Possible guidelines:

- CQ Doc 1.1/Doc2.2/Doc 3.2/Doc 4.1

Acceptance seems to be a reflection of moral-ethical values. With the function of time, acceptance of most situations will most likely come. With time. Unless you are sick, or you have a strong driven force for injustice. By this meaning, you are capable of dividing, or separate, between systematical happenings and decisions made by the system state regulative systems, and everyday life. I can throw a stone thru your window, or I can f your wife. It all depends on your own moral and values of what is worth either fighting for or the outside acceptance of what you “should be able to handle”. This is basically a conflict/war related issue when it comes to peace settlements.

An example: Let's say that your child is being placed, by the court system, with child abusers and pedophiles (Inger Lise Dybvik & Helge Ørvik). Then you have to accept that for the sake of judicial power. Because it is a fundamental part of society that exists for everyone. By this meaning, order in a society. Or to keep order.

Question: Would you accept the situation of the sentence written at the bottom of this document?

So, what to accept might be the ultimate question. The answer here is something you can only figure out for yourself. If you accept everything (as a man), you are weak. If you do not accept it, society will gain positive growth unless you do it for your own ego. If you do it for your own ego, society will die (if you have shitloads of power).

To accept that the color is named green is ok (which by the way stands for zero kills on signs ,‘0K’ , during the civil war in the U.S.) is fine because it is learned from a young age. So society and feelings and hormone production does not seem to be aligned in a weird way of behaving, accepting, and ordering. This is called common knowledge.

We have corruption, lobbyism and mentally ill people ruining your life or your child's life. Good luck with that.

Morten Juklerød Sønstelid has chosen to involve himself in a court case and defend child abusers and pedophiles, and must also take the forthcoming consequences of that. Because it is not accepted.

