

Flow of material - Wind equals number one factor for force driven material behaviour on Earth

Illustration: The Earth is not flat just because you view it as a panorama view. But wind do operate in lineage

Wind is considered as the closest ‘phenomena’ for a life on Earth to experience direct conscious interaction with electromagnetism. The conscious self has an opportunity to manipulate wind also, making electromagnetism the fundamental source of understanding the building blocks of not only our universe, but mainly how it operates under strict conditions such as habitable planets within the field of its own limits such as our protection shield for evolution and development. The human species has come to a point where manipulation of others is highly important to keep some form of a stabilized society, and in no way is that depressing. Not. Environmental / societal.

An example: GHG is not being handled under the required operating systems creating a leak which flows from east to west, or opposite. The nation where the unwanted gases have a tendency to ‘stay longer’, will now face consequences because they will have trouble reaching their own environmental goals as a result of legislations and regulatives set by, for example, the EU. An example as a result of choices made by environmental influence.

A question: How does electromagnetism affect wind, and vice versa?

If we then make wind operating according to the laws of electromagnetism, it can be seen as an equivalent to critical thinking. This lack of critical thinking is what you see in MSM (mainstream media / the cooperative media houses.) This is another paradox on this planet. People (especially the elders) rely on newspapers and the media for information, and there has been a tendency to ‘massage the truth’, and also strictly lies within. This is common in the 20s. A f circus and a joke. No doubt that the working class is being suppressed, one way or another.

An obscure question: Does wind and electromagnetism affect the Norwegian behavior of laughing at the tragedy of mr. Kirk? Or is it just a result of the democrats with their wind of ideas and thoughts penetrating minds over seas?

The electromagnetic field, and the force itself is key for further understanding about gravitational waves and how to implement such a vital function to keep holographic matter moving.
