As a result of war related situations, and peacemakers, it seems that we are right on point on where we should be compared to the underdeveloped systems, governments and regimes. Only an underdeveloped human being will believe that it is possible, in 2025, to have a global situation on Earth where we all 'can just love each other and live in peace and harmony'. This is due to three factors: The economic system, the educational system and legislations functioning globally. You can probably say everything as long as it is said in the correct manner. Give it a try.

Here is a list of points:

- U.S. is doing great, and their media system is just sad
- Russia is winning
- Iran is highly underdeveloped - good luck in space
- Israel must upgrade standards of war limits
- North Korea should be included in various global situations
- China is by far number one ranked
- Norway is couped, unless changes in structural systemic infrastructure are implemented

Use it for what it is worth, and not for escalation of disagreements.

Due to the possibility for the human mind to think for themselves, even though it is easier in a group, this is a short document meant for an overall overview.

Respect other people's opinions, as a start for equilibrium
