Prolonged Heatwave & Very Hot To Extreme Temperatures Incoming After All + Who Really Forecast It (Scale, Extent, Finer Details)...

I see that all the absolute charlatans are out in full force and pretending like they forecast the incoming heat and its extent all along and all by themselves, when realistically we all know differently and otherwise.

1. We were the first to call this in February of this year for these exact dates (no-one could have called this earlier as no one else issues forecasts this far ahead or that remain intact) and just as we did with the prolonged high pressure dominance "over weeks" from mid-April from within the exact same long range weather report

2. We then again and FIRSTLY reaffirmed this before anyone else and for all the others to follow on afterwards and after our updates once again

3. We also, finally and firstly, once again called for the upcoming types of temperatures (low to mid 30s) when many others, including the MO/BBC, were forecasting temperatures no higher than 26-27°C and for all the others to start following suit 'after our updates' and despite NEVER forecasting such types of temperatures and getting several hundred post likes in the process and for forecasting absolutely NOTHING!

We can and always conclusively offer repeated 'proof of forecast' with digitally-dated evidence before any other forecasters or pages and can they do or offer this?

Even some of their posts in the last several days suggest something very different and 'unknown' in comparison to our unchanged reports (check their posts yourselves), and now we are back to our scenario and their gradually rising of overall temperatures after our 'updates' from yesterday stating otherwise once again...

Just to put it all out there and say it how it really is for once...

I've some other things to attend to and this virus to flush out, but Happy Monday all and take care,
